2-Foot Rainfall Deluges Texas Area; Toll Rises

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—Torrential downpours of more than two feet sent flood waters rushing over a wide section of the middle Texas coast Sunday and forced many persons in low-lying areas to evacuate their homes.

At least four persons died as a result of the steady downpours since a tropical disturbance moved inland from the Gulf of Mexico late Thursday. Four other persons are missing and presumed dead.

One crewman aboard a shrimp-er was drowned when the craft was sunk during a squall as the tropical storm moved inland. Two other crewmen are missing and are presumed drowned. Two Latin American men were missing after their car was washed into flooded York Creek near Seguin.

William E. Hamm, 32, Houston fireman drowned when he fell into flooded Braes Bayou in Houston. Lee McKee, 24, drowned when his boat overturned in the same swollen stream. And a Negro youth, Calvin Joseph, 16, drowned while wading in the Houston floodwaters.

The heaviest rainfall was at Port Lavaca where 27.31 inches fell from late Thursday until Saturday evening. Of this amount 16.50 inches fell between 6 p.m. Saturday and Sunday afternoon.

The rains tapered off late Sunday and the U.S. Weather Bureau said they should end by Monday. However, because of heavy runoff, flood threats were expected to continue for a number of days.

The heavy tropical rains Sunday extended from central Texas coast northward to the Red River. Skies were partly cloudy to cloudy in the southeastern half of the state and clear in west Texas and the upper Panhandle. Afternoon temperatures ranged from 72 at Houston and Palacios to 96 at El Paso.

Three schools were opened to flood refugees at Port Lavaca where James Houlihan, civil defense director, estimated half of the city, located on Matagorda Bay, had been flooded.

Gates Says U.S. Defense Sound

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of Defense Thomas S. Gates said Sunday "we're militarily ready and sound" to deal with either a small war or a major war.

"Our readiness is intact and sensible, and we can quickly deploy forces and augment forces if we need to do so," he said.

Then Gates said America's defense is based on its mutual security program and he made an indirect plea for restoration of the 200 million dollars the House cut out of the military aid outfit.

The secretary also urged that Congress approve a controversial new aircraft carrier for the Navy and authorize more money for B-60 anti-aircraft missiles. Senate-House conferees, trying to reconcile different versions of the 40½-billion-dollar annual defense budget, still are debating these two expenditures.

Gates expressed his views in reply to questions by Sen. Leverett Saltonstall of Massachusetts, ranking Republican on the Senate Armed Services Committee, in an interview taped for radio-TV stations in the senator's state.

President Will Make Radio-TV Report Tonight

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower returned Sunday from a "pretty good" Far East trip, as he described it, and promptly turned to a backlog of government business.

While still at the airport, Eisenhower arranged with Vice President Richard M. Nixon and other members of his official family a Cabinet meeting probably to be held Monday.

Then he went to the White House to catch some rest and put finishing touches on the 6:30-7 p.m. EST radio-TV report he will make to the nation Monday night on his two-week, 23,000-mile journey to three Asian countries.

The President was reported prepared to picture as a success his goodwill visits to the Philippines, Formosa, Korea and U.S.-held Okinawa, and to blame the cancellation of his Japan stop on the Communists. He also was reported primed to defend administration foreign policy actions against mounting criticism from Democrats.

Ike Tanned And Jovial
The big orange-and-silver military jet transport plane carrying the presidential party touched down at Andrews Air Force Base at 9 a.m. after a 10-hour, 500 m.p.h. flight from Honolulu with a refueling stopover at Travis Air Force Base, Calif.

Eisenhower, who spent the last six days golfing and relaxing in Hawaii en route home, was tanned and jovial as he alighted from the plane.

The chief executive shook hands and exchanged greetings with the welcoming delegation of about 50 top officials including Nixon, Secretary of State Christian A. Herter and diplomats representing the countries he had just visited.

"How was your trip, Mr. President?" a reporter called out.

"Oh, pretty good," Eisenhower replied.

Eisenhower then talked to Nixon, Herter and Secretary of the Treasury Robert B. Anderson about setting up a Cabinet meeting. Other Cabinet members including Secretary of Labor James P. Mitchell, Secretary of the Interior Fred A. Seaton and Postmaster General Arthur E. Summerfield were on hand for the discussion.

Faces Heavy Workload
Eisenhower faced a heavy domestic workload with Congress churning out legislation in its adjournment push and the political conventions starting in two weeks.

Fights with Democratic legislators loomed over election year bills on medical care for the aged, an upward revision of the minimum wage law and increasing federal pay.

Domestic friction mounted too over the administration's conduct of foreign affairs.

Eisenhower was informed before he left Hawaii of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee report Saturday charging that the administration bungled its handling of the U2 spy plane affair.

STAVANGER, Norway (AP)—Soviet First Deputy Premier Anastas I. Mikoyan said Sunday the Paris summit meeting might have come about if Prime Minister Harold Macmillan of Britain had dared to stand up to President Eisenhower.

"Macmillan sincerely wanted the summit meeting to succeed, but he did not dare stand up to Eisenhower," Mikoyan told reporters during a trip to this scenic area.

"Both Macmillan and President (Charles) de Gaulle personally expressed regret to (Premier Nikita) Khrushchev over the breakdown of the conference. ## Rees Expected To Fight Family Slaying Charge

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UPI)—Defense attorneys indicated Sunday that jazz pianist Melvin "Dave" Rees will fight charges that he killed at least five persons, including an entire family of four, in the general vicinity of Washington, D.C., within the past three years.

The FBI and Virginia authorities accused the handsome, 31-year-old musician Saturday of murdering Mr. and Mrs. Carroll Vernon Jackson and their two small daughters last year. And Maryland authorities charged him with the lover's lane slaying of Mrs. Margaret Harold in 1957.

In addition, Rees, tall former University of Maryland economics student, has been questioned about the unsolved killings of two small girls in a Washington Park several years ago.

Rees Saturday night was ordered held on $100,000 bond for a July 6 hearing here. U. S. Commissioner Leslie Nicholson continued the hearing until that date to await proper papers from Baltimore, Md. The hearing will determine whether Rees is to be returned to Baltimore to stand trial for the slaying of Mrs. Jackson and her 4-year-old daughter, Susan Ann.

Immediately following the hearing, defense attorney C. P. J. Mooney, Jr., said that Rees "would plead innocent — he has said so." The suspect was under attorney's orders not to talk to newsmen.

Rees, a former dance band pianist and musical instructor, was arrested by G-men Friday for the slaying of Mrs. Harold at Gambrills, Md., near Washington, D.C. Then, 27 hours later, he was accused of being the kidnapper who slew the Jacksons 18 months ago.

Officials clamped a curtain of silence around the case after the dark haired Rees was arraigned Saturday night.

The motive for the five killings has not been established. However, investigators believe the Jacksons were killed by a sex fiend.

onstrate and stand up to Eisenhower, the American President would not have gone it alone in torpedoing the meeting. If they had dissociated themselves from the doctrine and if the Americans had promised not to continue with the policy of "sic doctrine, the summit meeting would have taken place.

"Khrushchev really wanted the summit meeting," he said.

Asked about rumors in the Western world that his political star was waning because he had been out of the news for a time, he answered: "You know more about that than I. I certainly have not heard anything of it. I am an old man—he is 64—and even I have a right to a vacation. If I did not take my vacation I would die very soon, and then I would really disappear from public life without leaving any grounds for guessing."

Scores Hurt; Authorities Seal Off Area

Windows Broken Miles Away; Castro Rushes To Scene

HAVANA (AP)—A shattering explosion which authorities said was from a munitions dump shook the Cuban capital Sunday night. Authorities immediately sealed off the explosion site. Cars loaded with apparently injured persons still streamed from the area an hour after the blast.

Windows were shattered over a large area of Havana and many persons were cut by flying glass. The blast appeared to be more severe than that which shattered the French munitions ship La Coubre and a part of the Havana port area last March 4 killing about 100 persons.

Fifty persons were listed as injured in the first reports from police Sunday night. Of these 21 were at a first-aid station at Regla, a small town at the end of Havana Bay.

Prime Minister Fidel Castro, President Osvaldo Dorticos, and numerous officials of the government went immediately to the scene.

Officials at the presidential palace said the explosion originated in a powder magazine in the Cayo Cruz region of east Havana. More Explosions Feared Military authorities sealed off a section of Havana Harbor near the major oil refineries—Esso Standard and Shell—with the warning that additional explosions were possible.

The blast which came at 6:55 p.m., was felt throughout Havana. Thousands of persons streamed toward the explosion area by car and on foot.

They were herded back by military guards and hurriedly summoned units of the people's militia.

The explosion sent a huge column of dense black smoke into the evening sky. It attracted thousands upon thousands of Havana residents and downtown Havana was soon in a chaos as crowds attempted to reach the Cayo Cruz region.

The scene of the explosion is a sparsely settled area of Havana in which a number of government installations are located. It is a little more than a mile from where La Coubre blew up.

Electric Power Interrupted
The blast interrupted electric power in some sections of the capital but first reports said there was no damage to the two large oil refineries and storage facilities.

Truman Hails United Nations

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Former President Harry S. Truman, speaking in the city where the United Nations was born June 26, 1945, told a candle-lit 15th birthday celebration Sunday night the U.N. "has helped keep some explosive areas from plunging us all into a third world war."

In a speech prepared for delivery, the former Democratic chief executive voiced inferential criticism of summit conferences such as the Paris meeting attended by his Republican successor, President Eisenhower.

"The United Nations is the permanent 'summit,'" Truman said. "That's where conferences should be held."

Truman, who gave the order as president which inaugurated atomic war, urged abolition of nuclear weapons—subject to open inspection—also of mass armies and the setting up of a U.N. international police force.

Speaking at the Masonic Temple a few blocks from the U.N.'s birthplace, the War Memorial Opera House, Truman acclaimed the organization as the only one through which the world can attain peace.

He spoke from a stage illuminated by 15 candles, each lit by the son of a consul in the diplomatic corps. Truman was an opera house speaker 15 years ago, urging representatives of 50 nations to find a way to end war.

U.N., 15 Years Old, Outgrowing Headquarters

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—The United Nations, 15 years old Sunday, is getting so many new members it is in danger of outgrowing its 66½-million-dollar headquarters.

The General Assembly hall and main committee rooms of the big house of glass overlooking New York's East River—opened less than 10 years ago—were planned to hold 70 national delegations.

There are now 82 member countries. Twelve more are expected to be voted in next fall. Officials estimate the membership eventually could hit 120.

Seats are being installed in the Assembly hall for 13 extra delegations. That is about all it can hold.

Architects are trying to figure out how the headquarters could be remodeled to take 120. The New York City firm of Harrison & Abramovitz is making this survey.

The growing pains result from a sudden surge of independence in Africa.

The Security Council will meet Tuesday to recommend U.N. membership for Mali in West Africa, a federation of the former French colonies of Senegal and Sudan which became independent last Monday.

It probably will meet again Wednesday to do the same for the Malagasy Republic—Madagascar—which gained independence from France Sunday.

The East African colony of British Somaliland also has become independent. Next Friday the neighboring Italian U.N. trust territory of Somalia, formerly called Somaliland, will get independence and the two will merge.

Thursday, the Belgian Congo will be transformed into the Congo Republic. Somalia and the Congo are likely to win the Council's recommendation next week.

Two former French trust territories in West Africa, Cameroon and Togo, got that approval earlier in the year. Dahomey, the Ivory Coast, Niger and the Upper Volta are expected to get it after they cut loose from France in August.

Congolese Undecided On Name For Nation

LEOPOLDVILLE, Belgian Congo (AP)—The birth of a new independent nation is due here Thursday and the baby still lacks a name. The Belgian Congo is attaining its freedom from Belgium and up to now the Congolese have not decided what to call their country.

Some suggest just "Congo," for the great river; some have suggested use of the old Portuguese name of the river, "Zaire," some suggested a changed spelling, to "Kongo."

One thing is certain: it won't be "Belgian Congo."

Four Ohioans Die In Plane Collision

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) Four Ohio men were killed Sunday in a collision of two private planes at 1,500 feet over farm lands 20 miles northwest of Columbus.

All the dead were occupants of one plane, a single-engine, four-passenger Mooney Mark 20A, which crashed in a field.

The other plane, carrying a pilot and a passenger, landed intact in a wheatfield nearby.

The dead were: John Richard Mercer, 34, of Columbus, the pilot; Ralph V. Smith, 50, of Galena; Ponfilio F. DePietro Jr., 32, Columbus; and Elmer M. Carmell, 39, Worthington.

4 Die In Crash Of Two Planes

PALMA DE MALLORCA, Balearic Islands (AP)—Four airmen, two Americans and two Germans, perished in the crash of their two training planes, officials of San Juan air base here said Sunday.

One plane was flown by Capt. Charles S. Melton, 34, and Capt. Roger P. Miller, 32, members of the U.S. Military Advisory Assistance Group set up to help train German officers.

The Pentagon in Washington listed Melton's next of kin as his widow, Ruth, at Erdingen air base and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer S. Melton of Mesa, Ariz. Miller's next of kin were listed as his widow, Shirley, at Erdingen and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth B. Miller of East Hampton, N.Y.

The planes hit a mountain near the village of Luch, 25 miles northwest of this Mediterranean island city. They left Erdingen training base in Germany for San Juan Saturday afternoon.

Doyle's statement said, "This deep and growing popular feeling for Gov. Stevenson makes it unnecessary for us to set up the elaborate political organization created by other candidates."

The Stevenson boosters hope to open a Los Angeles headquarters for their draft movement this week, somewhere near the Democratic National Committee and convention center.

Doyle said he hadn't checked Johnson on the report and wouldn't do so because "it would be an insult to call him up and ask him if he did it."

"As a matter of fact," Daniel said, "Sen. Johnson has been leaning over backwards not to use his position as majority leader of the Senate to embarrass the party or the country. He wouldn't support or oppose any legislation on the basis of what his actions might do to advance him politically."

These were the major sideline developments at the annual conference of governors here in the rugged Rockies.

The round robin petition to pledge Republican executives to the Nixon cause was sparked by Govs. Harold W. Handley of Indiana and J. Hugo Aronson of Montana.

At the same time, Gov. William G. Stratton of Illinois raised a call to all Republicans—Rockefeller among them—to stop quibbling, close ranks, and support Nixon wholeheartedly.

Williams and Stratton held news conferences.

The pitch to get Rockefeller's name on the loyalty oath to Nixon was made at the tail end of a meeting of the executive committee of the governors' conference, which opened for preliminary business Sunday.

Backers Claim More Support For Stevenson

WASHINGTON (AP)—Democrats eager to draft Adlai E. Stevenson for a third race for the presidency claimed pledges Sunday from more than 100 state and local party leaders who worked for him in 1956.

"A substantial number of this group are delegates to the 1960 convention," said James E. Doyle, campaign manager for the Stevenson backers.

Doyle, a former Wisconsin state Democratic chairman, said in a statement that demands for the former Illinois governor's nomination have been received from 45 states by Sen. A. S. Mike Monroney and Eleanor Roosevelt, widow of the late president.

He disclosed that Monroney and Mrs. Roosevelt had telegraphed state and local leaders of the 1956 Stevenson campaign urging them to ask delegates to this year's convention to demand that Stevenson accept "leadership for our party and our nation."

"If you are committed to another candidate," the Monroney-Roosevelt appeal said, "we ask that you now reassess the situation confronting America and consider supporting Adlai Stevenson's nomination."

Doyle's statement said, "This deep and growing popular feeling for Gov. Stevenson makes it unnecessary for us to set up the elaborate political organization created by other candidates."

The Stevenson boosters hope to open a Los Angeles headquarters for their draft movement this week, somewhere near the Democratic National Committee and convention center.

Unexpected Huddle

Khrushchev Delays Bucharest Departure, Meets Red Leaders

BUCHAREST, Romania (UPI)—Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev postponed his departure to Moscow and summoned other East European Communist leaders to an unexpected meeting here Sunday, reliable sources reported.

There was no official announcement or the Communist summit conference, which was reported to have lasted more than four hours.

But the sources said it was believed the Communist leaders were briefed on the latest foreign policy situation by Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko, whose presence here became known only Saturday night.

Unofficial sources said Khrushchev would leave Bucharest Sunday, following the windup of a weeklong gathering of top Communists highlighted by Moscow.

Peiping ideological disputes.

But late Sunday night, Khrushchev's special plane—an IL-18 four-engine turbo-prop transport—was still at the Bucharest Baneasa Airport, its engines shrouded in tarpaulins, and guarded by Romanian soldiers.

Khrushchev himself had refused to give any details of his departure plans at the reception.

Khrushchev, in speeches here, reaffirmed that the Soviet Union would pursue its policy of "peaceful co-existence" with the West and repeated his view that "war is not inevitable."

While he appeared to stand firm on this despite Communist Chinese opposition, some Western experts said Khrushchev might be ready for minor concessions in the dispute with Peiping.

N.Y. Governor Put On Spot At Meeting

Johnson Legislative Blackmail Question Raised By Williams

GLACIER NATIONAL PARK, Mont. (AP)—Nelson A. Rockefeller refused Sunday to join other Republican governors in a written pledge of "full and loyal support" for Vice President Richard M. Nixon's presidential bid.

A maneuver to sign the GOP governors to the Nixon loyalty oath was designed primarily to put Rockefeller on the spot. The New York governor politely parried the attempt to lure him definitely into the Nixon camp.

Rockefeller told a subsequent news conference he wasn't going to sign up.

"I saw the sheet," he said with a smile, "but I'm the chairman of an uncommitted delegation (at the Republican Convention). Therefore it would not be appropriate."

He said he thinks there is "every likelihood, every chance" Nixon will capture the nomination and that "I'm not unkindly disposed" toward him.

Williams Story Denied

From Democratic ranks at the annual conference of governors, Gov. G. Mennen Williams injected a question whether Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson (D-Tex.) is resorting to effect to legislative blackmail in order to promote his own chances for the Democratic presidential nomination.

Williams told a news conference he had been told Johnson had threatened to torpedo a medical health bill for oldsters if Williams came out for Sen. John F. Kennedy of Massachusetts for the nomination.

The Michigan governor, answering a question, said he was not charging Johnson with "legislative blackmail" but "I assume he used what weapons are available to him."

Firin' back, Gov. Price Daniel of Texas, a Johnson supporter, described the Williams story as "a pure political fabrication."

Daniel told a news conference he is confident Johnson made no such threat and expressed surprise that Williams would give credence to a report of this nature.

"Insult" To Check Report

Daniel said he hadn't checked Johnson on the report and wouldn't do so because "it would be an insult to call him up and ask him if he did it."

"As a matter of fact," Daniel said, "Sen. Johnson has been leaning over backwards not to use his position as majority leader of the Senate to embarrass the party or the country. He wouldn't support or oppose any legislation on the basis of what his actions might do to advance him politically."

The explosion sent a huge column of dense black smoke into the evening sky.

It attracted thousands upon thousands of Havana residents and downtown Havana was soon in a chaos as crowds attempted to reach the Cayo Cruz region.

The scene of the explosion is a sparsely settled area of Havana in which a number of government installations are located. It is a little more than a mile from where La Coubre blew up.

The blast interrupted electric power in some sections of the capital but first reports said there was no damage to the two large oil refineries and storage facilities.

Truman Hails United Nations

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Former President Harry S. Truman, speaking in the city where the United Nations was born June 26, 1945, told a candle-lit 15th birthday celebration Sunday night the U.N. "has helped keep some explosive areas from plunging us all into a third world war."

In a speech prepared for delivery, the former Democratic chief executive voiced inferential criticism of summit conferences such as the Paris meeting attended by his Republican successor, President Eisenhower.

"The United Nations is the permanent 'summit,'" Truman said. "That's where conferences should be held."

Truman, who gave the order as president which inaugurated atomic war, urged abolition of nuclear weapons—subject to open inspection—also of mass armies and the setting up of a U.N. international police force.

Speaking at the Masonic Temple a few blocks from the U.N.'s birthplace, the War Memorial Opera House, Truman acclaimed the organization as the only one through which the world can attain peace.

He spoke from a stage illuminated by 15 candles, each lit by the son of a consul in the diplomatic corps. Truman was an Opera House speaker 15 years ago, urging representatives of 50 nations to find a way to end war.

U.N., 15 Years Old, Outgrowing Headquarters

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The United Nations, 15 years old Sunday, is getting so many new members it is in danger of outgrowing its 66½-million-dollar headquarters.

The General Assembly hall and main committee rooms of the big house of glass overlooking New York's East River—opened less than 10 years ago—were planned to hold 70 national delegations.

There are now 82 member countries. Twelve more are expected to be voted in next fall. Officials estimate the membership eventually could hit 120.

Seats are being installed in the Assembly hall for 13 extra delegations. That is about all it can hold.

Architects are trying to figure out how the headquarters could be remodeled to take 120. The New York City firm of Harrison & Abramovitz is making this survey.

The growing pains result from a sudden surge of independence in Africa.

The Security Council will meet Tuesday to recommend U.N. membership for Mali in West Africa, a federation of the former French colonies of Senegal and Sudan which became independent last Monday.

It probably will meet again Wednesday to do the same for the Malagasy Republic—Madagascar—which gained independence from France Sunday.

The East African colony of British Somaliland also has become independent. Next Friday the neighboring Italian U.N. territory of Somalia, formerly called Somaliland, will get independence and the two will merge.

Thursday, the Belgian Congo will be transformed into the Congo Republic. Somalia and the Congo are likely to win the Council's recommendation next week.

Two former French trust territories in West Africa, Cameroon and Togo, got that approval earlier in the year. Dahomey, the Ivory Coast, Niger and the Upper Volta are expected to get it after they cut loose from France in August.

Congolese Undecided On Name For Nation

LEOPOLDVILLE, Belgian Congo (AP) — The birth of a new independent nation is due here Thursday and the baby still lacks a name. The Belgian Congo is attaining its freedom from Belgium and up to now the Congolese have not decided what to call their country.

Some suggest just "Congo," for the great river; some have suggested use of the old Portuguese name of the river, "Zaire," some suggested a changed spelling, to "Kongo."

One thing is certain: it won't be "Belgian Congo."

Four Ohioans Die In Plane Collision

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) Four Ohio men were killed Sunday in a collision of two private planes at 1,500 feet over farm lands 20 miles northwest of Columbus.

All the dead were occupants of one plane, a single-engine, four-passenger Mooney Mark 20A, which crashed in a field.

The other plane, carrying a pilot and a passenger, landed intact in a wheatfield nearby.

The dead were: John Richard Mercer, 34, of Columbus, the pilot; Ralph V. Smith, 50, of Galena; Ponilio F. DePietro Jr., 32, Columbus; and Elmer M. Carmell, 39, Worthington.

4 Die In Crash Of Two Planes

PALMA DE MALLORCA, Balearic Islands (AP) — Four air-men, two Americans and two Germans, perished in the crash of their two training planes, officials of Son San Juan air base here said Sunday.

The planes hit a mountain near the village of Luch, 25 miles northwest of this Mediterranean island city. They left Erdingen training base in Germany for Son San Juan Saturday afternoon.

One plane was flown by Capt. Charles S. Melton, 34, and Capt. Roger P. Miller, 32, members of the U.S. Military Advisory Assistance Group set up to help train German officers.

The Pentagon in Washington listed Melton's next of kin as his widow, Ruth, at Erdingen air base and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ellis J. Melton of Mesa, Ariz. Miller's next of kin were listed as his widow, Shirley, at Erdingen and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth B. Miller of East Hampton, N.Y.

Unexpected Huddle

Khrushchev Delays Bucharest Departure, Meets Red Leaders

BUCHAREST, Romania (UPI) — Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev postponed his departure to Moscow and summoned other East European Communist leaders to an unexpected meeting here Sunday, reliable sources reported.

There was no official announcement or the Communist summit conference, which was reported to have lasted more than four hours.

But the sources said it was believed the Communist leaders were briefed on the latest foreign policy situation by Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko, whose presence here became known only Saturday night.

Unofficial sources said Khrushchev would leave Bucharest Sunday, following the windup of a weeklong gathering of top Communists highlighted by Moscow.

Backers Claim More Support For Stevenson

WASHINGTON (AP) — Democrats eager to draft Adlai E. Stevenson for a third race for the presidency claimed pledges Sunday from more than 100 state and local party leaders who worked for him in 1956.

"A substantial number of this group are delegates to the 1960 convention," said James E. Doyle, campaign manager for the Stevenson backers.

Doyle, a former Wisconsin state Democratic chairman, said in a statement that demands for the former Illinois governor's nomination have been received from 45 states by Sen. A. S. Mike Monroney and Eleanor Roosevelt, widow of the late president.

He disclosed that Monroney and Mrs. Roosevelt had telegraphed state and local leaders of the 1956 Stevenson campaign urging them to ask delegates to this year's convention to demand that Stevenson accept "leadership for our party and our nation."

"If you are committed to another candidate," the Monroney-Roosevelt appeal said, "we ask that you now reassess the situation confronting America and consider supporting Adlai Stevenson's nomination."

Doyle's statement said, "This deep and growing popular feeling for Gov. Stevenson makes it unnecessary for us to set up the elaborate political organization created by other candidates."

The Stevenson boosters hope to open a Los Angeles headquarters for their draft movement this week, somewhere near the Democratic National Committee and N.Y. convention center.

Democratic Convention Delegate Contests Loom

WASHINGTON (AP) — Delegate contests are shaping up for the Democratic National Convention. They involve charges of party disloyalty and violation of a good faith rule.

As yet, not a single contest is in the offing for the Republican convention.

The Democratic National Committee's credential committee will hold the first hearings on delegate challenges. Its decisions are then passed on by the convention credentials committee and the convention itself.

Democratic National Chairman Paul M. Butler says his committee's credentials group will challenge Southern delegates known to have publicly supported President Eisenhower in 1952 or 1956.

These delegates, Butler adds, probably will be asked to sign a "simple statement, not a loyalty oath." This statement will say they come to the convention in good faith and will support the convention nominees and platform, and favor presidential electors pledged to the national ticket.

Camille Gravel, Louisiana national committeeman whose ouster by his state party organization will become effective after the convention, has served notice he will challenge three Louisiana delegates. Gravel contends their records indicate they might balk at supporting the party's nominee. Gravel is co-chairman of the credential committee.

One of the three is former State Sen. William M. Rainach, who said a move to unseat the three would be the first step to force Louisiana out of the party.

The 1956 convention good faith rule is to be proposed also for next month's convention in Los Angeles. It does not require any formal pledge by delegates "in the absence of credentials contests or challenge."

The 1956 good faith rule, aside from the challenge proviso, merely says that state party organizations in certifying delegates undertake to assure voters they will have an opportunity to cast their votes for the convention nominees, and for electors so bound under the regular party label and designation.

Butler says the credentials group still has to decide what to do about delegations from Southern states that free electors to vote as they please in the Electoral College, and from states that recessed their state conventions.

The idea behind free electors is to open the way for a third party ticket in event the national convention candidates are unacceptable to the South.

U.S. Development Of Disarmament Specialists Urged

WASHINGTON (AP) — A non-government committee Sunday urged development of a corps of disarmament specialists so that the United States will be well-prepared to future conferences.

Under both Democratic and Republican administrations since World War II, the committee said, America has gone into disarmament meetings with "jerrybuilt policies and hastily recruited spokesmen" and has "frequently been caught off balance" by the Soviet Union.

The Committee on Security through Arms Control spoke in a 45-page report on "Strengthening the Government for Arms Control."

The committee is a unit of the National Planning Assn., which describes itself as a nonprofit, nonpolitical organization that makes studies on public affairs.

Minister Drowns Trying To Save Son

ST. MARYS, W. Va. (UPI) — The Rev. Roy Markle, 45, of Parkersburg, Rt. 1, drowned Saturday in nearby Middle Island Creek while attempting to save his nine-year-old son, John. The youth was saved by Markle's other son, David, 15.

Pleasants County Coroner C. A. Rutenberger said Mr. and Mrs. Markle, a daughter, Alice, 15, and another son, David, 15, were watching John fish in the stream when the youth slipped and fell into the water.

The father jumped into the creek, although he could not swim, and pushed John to where David could reach him. The minister then sank in some 16 feet of water. Neither boy was able to swim.

The body was recovered by firemen from St. Marys about 30 minutes after the accident.

Killed were Mr. and Mrs. M. P. Elsing, also of Pittsburg.

Four Seized In $155,000 Swiss Payroll Robbery

FRANKFURT, Germany (AP) — Police Sunday announced the capture of four ex-convicts wanted for what they called Europe's biggest payroll robbery since the end of World War II.

They said the quartet broke into a safe at a big chemical plant in Basel, Switzerland, April 8 and got away with 640,000 Swiss francs—about $155,000. The men—a German, a Bulgarian and two Poles—were picked up last week in Frankfurt and Weil, a small German town near the Swiss border. Police said none of the money has been recovered.

Anti-Benson Feeling Factor In N.D. Election

FARGO, N.D. (AP) — Ezra Taft Benson, who hasn't even been in North Dakota for a couple of years, casts a long and possibly fateful shadow over its special senatorial election Tuesday.

Gov. John E. Davis, a Republican, and Rep. Quentin N. Burdick (D-ND) are running for the seat left vacant by the death of Sen. William Langer (R-ND).

And Agriculture Secretary Benson often seems to be playing a more important role in the campaign than either of them.

Somewhere in this state, there must be someone who likes Benson, who thinks he has a nice and attractive family, who even thinks maybe he's doing as well as could be expected with a complicated farm problem that is further complicated by politics.

But if he's here, he's keeping quiet in this election.

The anti-Benson feeling crops up even at Republican gatherings.

One of the largest and most enthusiastic GOP meetings was at Minot last Monday, to hear Vice President Richard M. Nixon speak for Davis.

An Indian on the program was trying to explain how his tribe feels about the Indian program.

"You know how you farmers feel about Benson," he said.

There were immediate boos for Benson.

Move across the state to Lisbon, and listen to Sen. Milton R. Young (R-ND) make his pitch for Davis.

As he does he reminds everyone that he's always fought Benson. About the best he can do in making any political hay is to say that the Democrats haven't done much about solving the farm problem either.

Or talk to Mark Andrews, the Republican national committeeman, a prosperous farmer who, at 34, is considered by many a real comer in this state's politics.

"Do you realize," Andrews asks bitterly, "that in 1952 this was the most Republican state in the nation? Even more so than Vermont? I think we got around 74 per cent of the vote, and there were only three Democrats in the State Legislature."

And now? In the State Senate, with 49 members, the Democrats have 18. In the House, with 113 members, the Democrats have 49.

Who is responsible for this amazing Democratic surge? Who helped to consolidate the opposition so that the old Nonpartisan League after 40 years of running its candidates in Republican primaries, switched over to the Democrats in 1956?

"Benson," Andrews says.

Benson's unpopularity, so Burdick says, stems from two things:

1. The secretary of agriculture has permission to adopt a sliding scale of price supports but Benson was the first to use it. Burdick says this has severely hurt farm income.

2. The soil bank pays a farmer to put his entire farm in a sort of cold storage, on which no crops or grazing is permitted. Some farmers are selling their equipment and clearing out.

West Berlin Concerned As Population Shrinks

BERLIN (AP) — Isolated, Communist-surrounded West Berlin voiced alarm Sunday about a slow but steady drop in its permanent population.

"Berlin is a dying city," proclaimed West Berlin's independent, mass circulation BZ newspaper. "Berlin needs fresh blood."

Since 1958, when Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev demanded that Western troops get out of West Berlin, the city's population of 2,200,000 has dropped more than 20,000. Most of these people have moved to West Germany.

Commenting on this trend, West Berlin's police superintendent, Joachim Lipschitz, disclosed city hall is thinking of slashing red tape involving German residence permits.

He said the city government is debating whether to eliminate the requirement that any would-be resident must first obtain a permit.

Although this applies to both East and West Germans, it is directed mostly against East German refugees, who still are streaming into West Berlin at the rate of several thousand a week. Under legal agreements with West Germany, the city is required to take only 6.5 per cent of these refugees. The remainder are airlifted to West Germany, where most are quickly absorbed by the booming economy.

Ex-Sen. Shipstead Of Minnesota Dies

ALEXANDRIA, Minn. (AP) — Former U.S. Sen. Henrik Shipstead of Minnesota, an ardent isolationist of the pre-World War II era and once among the Senate's most powerful members, died in his sleep here Sunday.

Shipstead was 79. He had been confined to hospitals and rest homes for the last several years.

He served four terms in the Senate—being elected in 1922, 1928, 1934, and 1940. He won his seat the first three terms running on the Farmer-Labor ticket, now the Democratic-Farmer-Labor ticket. In 1940, Shipstead returned to the Senate running on the Republican ticket.

Services will be held at 10:30 a.m. Thursday in First English Lutheran church, Alexandria, with burial in Kinkead Cemetery here.

13 Bodies Recovered

RIO DE JANEIRO (UPI) — Salvage workers Sunday recovered the bodies of two more of the 51 victims of a Brazilian airliner which crashed Friday in Guanabara Bay.

Only 13 bodies have been dredged up from the site of the disaster, which killed everyone aboard. Only eight of the bodies have been so far identified. All of them were Brazilians.

As he does he reminds everyone that he's always fought Benson. About the best he can do in making any political hay is to say that the Democrats haven't done much about solving the farm problem either.

Or talk to Mark Andrews, the Republican national committeeman, a prosperous farmer who, at 34, is considered by many a real comer in this state's politics.

"Do you realize," Andrews asks bitterly, "that in 1952 this was the most Republican state in the nation? Even more so than Vermont? I think we got around 74 per cent of the vote, and there were only three Democrats in the State Legislature."

And now? In the State Senate, with 49 members, the Democrats have 18. In the House, with 113 members, the Democrats have 49.

Who is responsible for this amazing Democratic surge? Who helped to consolidate the opposition so that the old Nonpartisan League after 40 years of running its candidates in Republican primaries, switched over to the Democrats in 1956?

"Benson," Andrews says.

Benson's unpopularity, so Burdick says, stems from two things:

1. The secretary of agriculture has permission to adopt a sliding scale of price supports but Benson was the first to use it. Burdick says this has severely hurt farm income.

2. The soil bank pays a farmer to put his entire farm in a sort of cold storage, on which no crops or grazing is permitted. Some farmers are selling their equipment and clearing out.

Soap powder in packages was introduced by Benjamin Babbitt about 1845.

U.S. Development Of Disarmament Specialists Urged

WASHINGTON (AP) — A non-government committee Sunday urged development of a corps of disarmament specialists so that the United States will be well-prepared to future conferences.

Under both Democratic and Republican administrations since World War II, the committee said, America has gone into disarmament meetings with "jerrybuilt policies and hastily recruited spokesmen" and has "frequently been caught off balance" by the Soviet Union.

The Committee on Security through Arms Control spoke in a 45-page report on "Strengthening the Government for Arms Control."

The committee is a unit of the National Planning Assn., which describes itself as a nonprofit, nonpolitical organization that makes studies on public affairs.

Minister Drowns Trying To Save Son

ST. MARYS, W. Va. (UPI) — The Rev. Roy Markle, 45, of Parkersburg, Rt. 1, drowned Saturday in nearby Middle Island Creek while attempting to save his nine-year-old son, John. The youth was saved by Markle's other son, David, 15.

Pleasants County Coroner C. A. Rutenberger said Mr. and Mrs. Markle, a daughter, Alice, 15, and another son, David, 15, were watching John fish in the stream when the youth slipped and fell into the water.

The father jumped into the creek, although he could not swim, and pushed John to where David could reach him. The minister then sank in some 16 feet of water. Neither boy was able to swim.

The body was recovered by firemen from St. Marys about 30 minutes after the accident.

Boy Wrecks Stolen Car, Killing Couple

PITTSBURG, Kan. (UPI) — A 15-year-old high school sophomore stole a car from in front of a church here Sunday and shortly afterward crashed head-on into another auto, killing both of its occupants.

The youth, Terry Maxey, of Pittsburg, suffered a broken leg and lost most of his front teeth in the collision.

Killed were Mr. and Mrs. M. P. Elsing, also of Pittsburg.

Four Seized In $155,000 Swiss Payroll Robbery

FRANKFURT, Germany (AP) — Police Sunday announced the capture of four ex-convicts wanted for what they called Europe's biggest payroll robbery since the end of World War II.

They said the quartet broke into a safe at a big chemical plant in Basel, Switzerland, April 8 and got away with 640,000 Swiss francs—about $155,000. The men—a German, a Bulgarian and two Poles—were picked up last week in Frankfurt and Weil, a small German town near the Swiss border. Police said none of the money has been recovered.

Pubs Install Drink Meters

CARLISLE, England (AP) — Fourteen public houses owned by the British government are installing drink meters to tell car drivers when they've had enough.

The meters test reaction speeds. The driver drops a coin in the meter, then tries to stop the coin by pressing a button.

If he can stop it in less than .12 of a second he gets the coin back. If not, he loses the coin—and gets a warning that his reactions have slowed up.

The machines are approved by Britain's Royal Society for Prevention of Accidents, though not by some police officers.

Sidney Ballance, chief constable of neighboring Barrow-in-Furness, called them a menace. He said they will encourage drivers to drink more to test their capacity.

Some people doubt the drink meters' efficiency.

Peter Johnson, a young Royal Air Force officer, wrote to the Observer Sunday to say he and several other young pilots tried out the machines and found their reactions improving as they had more to drink.

Democratic Convention Delegate Contests Loom

WASHINGTON (AP) — Delegate contests are shaping up for the Democratic National Convention. They involve charges of party disloyalty and violation of a good faith rule.

As yet, not a single contest is in the offing for the Republican convention.

The Democratic National Committee's credential committee will hold the first hearings on delegate challenges. Its decisions are then passed on by the convention credentials committee and the convention itself.

Democratic National Chairman Paul M. Butler says his committee's credentials group will challenge Southern delegates known to have publicly supported President Eisenhower in 1952 or 1956.

These delegates, Butler adds, probably will be asked to sign a "simple statement, not a loyalty oath." This statement will say they come to the convention in good faith and will support the convention nominees and platform, and favor presidential electors pledged to the national ticket.

Camille Gravel, Louisiana national committeeman whose ouster by his state party organization will become effective after the convention, has served notice he will challenge three Louisiana delegates Gravel contends their records indicate they might balk at supporting the party's nominee.

Gravel is co-chairman of the credential committee.

One of the three is former State Sen. William M. Rainach, who said a move to unseat the three would be the first step to force Louisiana out of the party.

The 1956 convention good faith rule is to be proposed also for next month's convention in Los Angeles. It does not require any formal pledge by delegates "in the absence of credentials contests or challenge."

The 1956 good faith rule, aside from the challenge proviso, merely says that state party organizations in certifying delegates undertake to assure voters they will have an opportunity to cast their votes for the convention nominees.

Anti-Benson Feeling Factor In N.D. Election

By ARTHUR EDSON

FARGO, N.D. (AP) — Ezra Taft Benson, who hasn't even been in North Dakota for a couple of years, casts a long and possibly fateful shadow over its special senatorial election Tuesday.

Gov. John E. Davis, a Republican, and Rep. Quentin N. Burdick (D-ND) are running for the seat left vacant by the death of Sen. William Langer (R-ND).

And Agriculture Secretary Benson often seems to be playing a more important role in the campaign than either of them.

Somewhere in this state, there must be someone who likes Benson, who thinks he has a nice and attractive family, who even thinks maybe he's doing as well as could be expected with a complicated farm problem that is further complicated by politics.

But if he's here, he's keeping quiet in this election.

The anti-Benson feeling crops up even at Republican gatherings. One of the largest and most enthusiastic GOP meetings was at Minot last Monday, to hear Vice President Richard M. Nixon speak for Davis.

An Indian on the program was trying to explain how his tribe feels about the Indian program.

"You know how your farmers feel about Benson," he said.

There were immediate boos for Benson.

Move across the state to Lisbon, and listen to Sen. Milton R. Young (R-ND) make his pitch for Davis. As he does he reminds everyone that he's always fought Benson.

About the best he can do in making any political hay is to say that the Democrats haven't done much about solving the farm problem either.

Or talk to Mark Andrews, the Republican national committeeman, a prosperous farmer who, at 34, is considered by many a real comer in this state's politics.

"Do you realize," Andrews asks bitterly, "that in 1952 this was the most Republican state in the nation? Even more so than Vermont? I think we got around 74 per cent of the vote, and there were only three Democrats in the State Legislature."

West Berlin Concerned As Population Shrinks

Baptist World Alliance Opens Rio Conference

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (AP) — The 10th congress of the Baptist World Alliance—first ever held in Roman Catholic South America—opened Sunday in a huge indoor stadium.

The alliance president, Dr. Theodore F. Adams of Richmond, Va., reported in a prepared speech to an estimated 10,000 Baptists from all over the world that their Protestant sect was growing rapidly despite what he called persecution and lack of religious freedom in many countries of the world.

Dr. Adams said Baptists continue their fight against racism in the world and reported particular progress in the Union of South Africa.

Although this applies to both East and West Germans, it is directed mostly against East German refugees, who still are streaming into West Berlin at the rate of several thousand a week. Under legal agreements with West Germany, the city is required to take only 6.5 per cent of these refugees. The remainder are airlifted to West Germany, where most are quickly absorbed by the booming economy.

Ex-Sen. Shipstead Of Minnesota Dies

ALEXANDRIA, Minn. (AP) —

Former U.S. Sen. Henrik Shipstead of Minnesota, an ardent isolationist of the pre-World War II era and once among the Senate's most powerful members, died in his sleep here Sunday.

Shipstead was 79. He had been confined to hospitals and rest homes for the last several years.

He served four terms in the Senate—being elected in 1922, 1928, 1934, and 1940. He won his seat the first three terms running on the Farmer-Labor ticket, now the Democratic-Farmer-Labor ticket. In 1940, Shipstead turned to the Senate running on the Republican ticket.

Services will be held at 10:30 a.m. Thursday in First English Lutheran church, Alexandria, with burial in Kinkead Cemetery here.

Teener Traffic Court System Is Proposed

OCEAN CITY, Md. (AP)—The chief magistrate of Baltimore City has called for creation of a teen-age traffic court system that would emphasize safety instead of punishment.

Magistrate Paul A. Dorf, speaking at the closing banquet of the Trial Magistrates Assn. of Maryland convention Saturday night, said the majority of defendants appearing in any traffic court are not criminals.

He said many of them are citizens of high moral character.

"We, by setting up the teen-age traffic court and teen-age traffic school, are emphasizing the individual's own personal responsibility to himself and to the community in general," Dorf said.

"Perhaps with enough effort exerted by us and in coordination with public cooperation, there can be a decrease in the amount of human slaughter on our highways," he said.

Dorf noted that since the teen-age traffic school was founded in 1951, there have been 14,000 youths who took the course. He said that less than 10 per cent of these returned to court with repeated violations.

The traffic school was initiated in Baltimore for youthful traffic violators and the idea has been picked up in other cities throughout the nation.

Earlier, the magistrates approved a resolution calling for establishment of the teen-age traffic court system in Maryland.

McWilliams Heads Md. State Bar Assn.

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP)—A former circuit judge, William J. McWilliams of Annapolis, is the new president of the Maryland State Bar Assn.

McWilliams was named Saturday in the first contested election of the association's 65-year history. He defeated another former judge, Michael Paul Smith of Baltimore County, 194 to 138.

In a new system inaugurated this year, Chief Judge Emory H. Niles of Baltimore was chosen president-elect, to take office as president automatically next year.

Feared Drowned

CAMBRIDGE (AP)—Searchers dragged along the mouth of the Choptank River Sunday for a 42-year-old carpenter reported missing from his outboard motorboat. Sheriff Calvert Creighton said the man, Travers Key of Cornersville, Dorchester County set out alone with the 16-foot vessel late Saturday.

The empty boat ran ashore near dusk at Hills Point.

Capitol Dome Will Stay Red A While Longer

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Capitol dome will continue in its red and buff condition for a while longer. Reason: A shortage of phthalic anhydride.

A special mixture of an off-white paint containing this tongue-twisting ingredient was to have been applied beginning June 1.

D. Stafford Kelly, field superintendent of the big painting project, said three separate batches of paint have been found to contain too little of the chemical. A fourth batch is under test now.

Workmen have sandblasted 32 coats of paint off the big iron dome. Sealer, a red lead base and most of the buff undercoat also have been applied.

Kelly said the white paint will go on as soon as it passes the tests.

"Everywhere I go, people ask me why the dome has been red so long," he said.

"Believe me, I'm anxious to see that white paint go on myself."

He said the final white coat, which will take seven weeks to apply, will highlight long-hidden decorations on the dome uncovered in the sandblasting operation.

Man Collapses, Dies In Cambridge Jail

CAMBRIDGE (AP)—A 54-year-old New Yorker collapsed and died Saturday night in a jail cell where he was serving time on a drunkenness charge.

Sheriff Calvert Creighton said the victim had been booked as Arthur Morrison of "around 67th Street and Third Ave." New York City. He had been in jail since June 10 serving out a fine of $25 and costs.

Creighton said Morrison was among prisoners assigned to a roadside weed-cutting detail Saturday and collapsed after being returned to his cell.

Dr. John Mace, Dorchester County medical examiner, pronounced him dead on arrival at a hospital and attributed death to a heart attack.

VFW Refuses To Lift Social Ban On Negro

BALTIMORE (AP)—The Maryland chapter of the Veterans of Foreign Wars has defeated a move aimed at permitting Negro members to attend VFW social events.

A resolution to permit Negroes to attend convention dances was rejected at the annual state VFW convention Saturday by a 55-36 vote.

The resolutions committee originally opposed the move because committee members felt it would be unenforceable in all parts of the state.

However, the committee appeared to be ready to endorse an amended version which specified that Negroes could attend the VFW dances in sections of Maryland where hotel discrimination did not exist. But this was defeated.

Paul Wolman, past national commander, strongly supported the amended resolution during a heated debate. He urged the veterans to follow examples set by the American Legion and the American Bar Assn. in adopting anti-discriminatory policies.

But other delegates, particularly avowed segregationists, bitterly assailed the resolution.

Under present policy, Negro members may attend the convention but are not sold tickets to the annual banquet—such as the one held here Saturday night.

Only five of Maryland's 112 VFW posts are Negro.

Bay Survey Project

WASHINGTON (AP)—A Coast and Geodetic Survey plane, equipped with infra-red cameras, takes off Friday for a new look at Chesapeake Bay.

Sen. John Marshall Butler (R-Md.) said the flight marks the beginning of a cooperative survey project between the federal government and the Tidewater Fisheries Commission.

It is scheduled to be completed before July 1, 1961, weather permitting.

Their mother, Mrs. Bess Kajouris, said they keep her so busy she didn't have time to bake.

Labor Unions Urged To Support Washington County Drive

BALTIMORE (AP)—The president of the Maryland State-D.C. AFL-CIO has urged all affiliated unions to support efforts to solve Washington County's economic problems.

W.F. Strong made the request Saturday after passing along a plea for assistance from the Hagerstown local of the United Automobile Workers Union.

Strong asked the unions to support a fund drive recently launched by the Hagerstown Washington County Industrial Foundation, a new non-profit, tax-exempt organization created to encourage new industries to locate in the county.

The foundation, headed by former Gov. William Preston Lane, is trying to raise $200,000 as a capital fund.

It was created because the county's Economic Development Commission is prohibited by law from optioning land, leasing buildings and lending funds for new industry.

Teener Traffic Court System Is Proposed

OCEAN CITY, Md. (AP)—The chief magistrate of Baltimore City has called for creation of a teen-age traffic court system that would emphasize safety instead of punishment.

Magistrate Paul A. Dorf, speaking at the closing banquet of the Trial Magistrates Assn. of Maryland convention Saturday night, said the majority of defendants appearing in any traffic court are not criminals.

He said many of them are citizens of high moral character.

"We, by setting up the teen-age traffic court and teen-age traffic school, are emphasizing the individual's own personal responsibility to himself and to the community in general," Dorf said.

"Perhaps with enough effort exerted by us and in coordination with public cooperation, there can be a decrease in the amount of human slaughter on our highways," he said.

Dorf noted that since the teen-age traffic school was founded in 1951, there have been 14,000 youths who took the course. He said that less than 10 per cent of these returned to court with repeated violations.

The traffic school was initiated in Baltimore for youthful traffic violators and the idea has been picked up in other cities throughout the nation.

Earlier, the magistrates approved a resolution calling for establishment of the teen-age traffic court system in Maryland.

McWilliams Heads Md. State Bar Assn.

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP)—A former circuit judge, William J. McWilliams of Annapolis, is the new president of the Maryland State Bar Assn.

McWilliams was named Saturday in the first contested election of the association's 65-year history. He defeated another former judge, Michael Paul Smith of Baltimore County, 194 to 138.

In a new system inaugurated this year, Chief Judge Emory H. Niles of Baltimore was chosen president-elect, to take office as president automatically next year.

Feared Drowned

CAMBRIDGE (AP)—Searchers dragged along the mouth of the Choptank River Sunday for a 42-year-old carpenter reported missing from his outboard motorboat.

Sheriff Calvert Creighton said the man, Travers Key of Cornersville, Dorchester County set out alone with the 16-foot vessel late Saturday.

The empty boat ran ashore near dusk at Hills Point.

Secrets Of Charm

by John Robert Powers

Are You A Beauty-On-The-Beach?

How do you look after you've been in the swim? Like you've just sprouted a crop of seaweed where your hair should be? You can stop that crop—with a couple of caps.

One of the caps, of course, is a leak-locked bathing cap, the most efficient you can find. And, before you don your cap, work a little hair cream into your tresses so that they can get a conditioning treatment while your swimming does the same thing for the rest of you.

The other cap is a haircut—fashion's newest and smartest bobcap is made-to-order for mermaids. It's simple, short and quickly-ordered, which should suit serious bathers who couldn't care less about their beauty-on-the-beach. And the little dippers will surely be enticed near the water at last, confident that a good, healthy dunking won't devastate this easy-care hair style.

The bob-cap harkens back to the "boyish bob" of the 20's and 30's, but the strict severity has been softly feminized for the 60's. No copy-cat cut, you can select any length you like (eyebing your ears) just so it's fairly short. Your hair-stylist will know just how to crop the under-hairs to allow the top locks to follow a smooth and full (but head-buging) line to the back of your head. There's no shingle to show and to grow, like whiskers.

From the front, the 1960 bob takes a demure turn—upward on each side into flattering, feathered crescents. Lifted bangs may also be a froth of crescents, or they may fall full across the brow line.

Whatever your variation, you'll find a summer bob comfortable and convenient—and captivating to look at within seconds after

Now, after the swim is over, be sure to wash your hair—to remove every trace of sand, salt water or chemical purifier. Where this might seem a bothersome task to pay, ordinarily, just for a swim, a bob cap promises to take most of the pain away from this sensible precaution against seaweed hair.

Indian Artists, Intellectuals Open Festival

LA GRANDE, Ore. (UPI)—"Not only for art, but for the heart."

With this slogan, some concerned people in this northeastern Oregon college community are promoting an Indian Festival of Arts this week. They hope the national gathering of Indian artists and intellectuals will help restore the Red Man's place in the sun.

Indians of all tribes in the United States and Canada have been invited to display the ancient and contemporary art of their cultures in many media. Each evening during the festival, which runs from June 26 - 30, Indian drama and music performances are scheduled.

The festival is non-profit. Any revenue above expenses, plus donations and gifts, will go into a fund for scholarships and awards at the second festival next year. Donors receive a copy of a 64-page booklet, "We Remember."

The author of the booklet is Gladys Bibee Price, a writer and artist who is secretary of the festival and one of its moving forces. She talks feelingly of the white man's ill treatment of the original Americans and says that "although the hour is late, something definite and concrete should be done to right a wrong."

The mortality rate of persons who are one-tenth overweight is estimated at one-fifth higher than the average.

A Homecoming For The King

A three-day state visit starting tomorrow in Washington will be a homecoming of sorts for Phumiphon Aduldet, the King of Thailand. The monarch, who ascended the throne in 1955, was born in Cambridge, Mass., 32 years ago while his father was a Harvard medical student.

His Western orientation appears complete. The King is a talented jazz clarinetist who holds jam sessions at his Heart of Flower Palace in exotic Bangkok. The state visit will highlight a month-long tour of the United States for the King, his beautiful Queen Kitiyakara and their four children.

Thailand for many years has been a fast friend of the United States, and now is the cornerstone of the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization (SEATO). Thailand (known as Siam until 1949) is one of the few countries of Asia with a rice surplus and no pressing population problems. Its 20 million people inhabit a forested land about three-fourths the size of Texas.

Domestic affairs have been relatively stable since Field Marshal Sarit Thanarat, the Supreme Commander of the Thai armed forces, seized power in a bloodless coup in October 1958, and established himself as Premier. Sarit would like more economic aid from the United States, and once urged that future military aid be in the form of welfare projects for the armed forces.

Communist terrorists infiltrating Thailand from Malaya to the south, and from Laos to the northeast, appear to have been checked. This is well, for many strategists believe Thailand to be the military pivot upon which any common defense must turn if Red encroachments in the region are to be prevented.

These Days

By George E. Sokolsky

No Mollycoddle

In 1904 and 1905, Theodore Roosevelt established the principle that as the United States, under the Monroe Doctrine, objected to any European power intervening in the affairs of Latin America, the United States had a moral responsibility to maintain order and protect life and property in these countries.

In his 1904 annual message, President Theodore Roosevelt said:

"... It is not true that the United States feels any land hunger or entertains any projects as regards the other nations of the Western Hemisphere save such as are for their welfare. All that this country desires is to see the neighboring countries stable, orderly, and prosperous."

Then he declared American policy as follows:

"... Chronic wrongdoing, or an impotence which results in a general loosening of the ties of civilized society, may in America, as elsewhere, ultimately require intervention by some civilized nation, and in the Western Hemisphere the adherence of the United States to the Monroe Doctrine may force the United States, however reluctantly, in flagrant cases of such wrongdoing or impotence, to the exercise of an international police power."

Theodore Roosevelt never begged the issue. He was first of all an American. It was in that spirit that in this same message, he laid down this guiding statement:

"... We would interfere with them only in the last resort, and then only if it became evident that their inability or unwillingness to do justice at home and abroad had violated the rights of the United States or had invited foreign aggression to the detriment of the entire body of American nations."

In his 1905 annual message, Theodore Roosevelt wrote for contemporary America:

"... There are, of course, limits to the wrongs which any self-respecting nation can endure. It is always possible that wrong actions toward this Nation, or toward citizens of this Nation, in some State unable to keep order among its own people, unable to secure justice from outsiders, and unwilling to do justice to those outsiders who treat it well, may result in our having to take action to protect our rights; but such action will not be taken with a view to territorial aggression, and it will be taken at all only with extreme reluctance and when it has become evident that every other resource has been exhausted."

Fidel Castro might read the Roosevelt 1904 and 1905 messages in detail. True, times have changed but they have not changed that much.

The people of the United States are growing very weary of his nonsense and his next step, a mutual security treaty with Soviet Russia, may have to be his last.

Up to now President Eisenhower has taken the position that the United States will not be the aggressor in any situation. This attitude, well known to all countries, is the foundation of policy for other countries. They approach the United States impudently, assuming that President Eisenhower will turn the other cheek. No country fears us, because inaction is anticipated. President Eisenhower, it is believed universally, will fill out his term without taking action against Castro, no matter what Castro does that is antagonistic to the United States, short of blowing up Miami Beach.

The policy cannot much longer prevail. It is an encouragement to the weak and backward nations as well as to the Soviet Universal State to flout the United States on small matters as well as large. The policy has become a peril to world peace. From a moral standpoint, it may be justified on the ground that we are not the first to act in a fighting war, but in this period of the 20th Century, war is fought by other means than military and therefore an adjustment in thinking on this subject is necessary. This is particularly true as regards Cuba.

The application of Jehovah Witness pacifism to American policy is impossible when its enemy is armed for war. Khrushchev would not have dared to maintain his posture in Paris were he not sure that nothing would be done about it. Nor would Fidel Castro. In a word, the non-aggression policy has stimulated impudence.

The next President, no matter who he may be, will not be able to continue along Eisenhower's lines. The President is personally very popular and it is difficult to criticize him without offending many good people. No present candidate for the Presidency enjoys such personal popularity — which is very good, indeed.

'Where's Nixon's Courage On Farm Problems?'

Kennedy, Johnson, And The 'Catholic Issue'

By David Lawrence

WASHINGTON — Paul Butler, chairman of the Democratic National Committee, may have unwittingly put his finger on what is the real key to the Democratic Presidential nomination. He discussed frankly the "Catholic issue" in talking to the National Press Club here on Wednesday, and indicates plainly the dilemma that the Democrats may find themselves in if they fail to choose Senator Kennedy of Massachusetts as their nominee. Here is a tape recording of the question asked and the answer given by Mr. Butler:

"Q. If Jack Kennedy is denied the nomination because of objections of some leaders to his religion, do you think many Catholics will vote Republican?"

"A. I think that I've spoken on this before, although only perhaps in an isolated press conference which did not get national attention, particularly here from the press corps in Washington."

"This puts me right on the spot. I am an American Catholic, or, perhaps more properly, I am a Catholic American. And I believe that, up to now, the religious issue in the preferential primaries, the religious issue in the discussion by the leading newspapers and magazines and radio and television commentators, has been made such an issue that a Catholic bloc vote, which does not exist ordinarily — and I think anybody who knows anything about American politics cannot contend otherwise."

"There is no such thing as a Catholic bloc vote normally, but the Catholics of the country, in a feeling of discrimination which may very well be expressed in the denial — not necessarily altogether the reason, but certainly maybe a very important reason why Jack Kennedy would be denied the nomination, if he is — and might very well result in just a normal reaction on the part of any American who felt that one of his own, in a particular religious faith, had been discriminated against on the grounds of religion."

"And I say to you, very objectively I hope, that I think that that situation may very well be developed, not because of any effort within the membership of the Catholic Church of the United States to create a Catholic bloc vote either pro or con. And I think that you would find much less of a Catholic bloc vote for Mr. Kennedy if he is nominated than you would find against the Democratic ticket if he is denied the nomination and comes into the convention with almost enough votes to win the nomination."

Now, it so happens that long before the primary contests in the various states in the last few months began, Senator Kennedy let it be known that he would not remain silent on the "Catholic issue." He told newsmen that, if after winning most of the primaries, he were turned down by the Democratic National Convention, he would conclude that his religion had been a deterrent factor.

This point of view, in deed, has been shared by many of Mr. Kennedy's followers. In fact, there have been some who have argued that the "Catholic issue" would be a benefit to a Catholic who happens to be nominated. During the 1956 Democratic convention when the Massachusetts Senator was being boomed for the Vice Presidential nomination, his supporters used statistics to show that the Catholic vote holds the balance of power in some of the states with big electoral votes and that a Catholic on the ticket would be an asset rather than a liability.

The significance of the argument is not lost on the politicians, especially those in the large cities. For, if Senator Kennedy fails to get the nomination, whether because of his religion or because of some other factor — such as his youth or inexperience — the leaders of the big Democratic organizations know they may have something of a debate on their hands with the rank and file of the precinct workers if they have not done everything they could to nominate the Massachusetts Senator for the top spot.

There are among the organization men those who hope that, if this is not possible but Mr. Kennedy is chosen for second place, some of the resentment will disappear.

The opposition to Senator Kennedy inside the Democratic Party is in large part based on reasons other than the "Catholic issue." There are those who want a candidate more friendly to union labor. There are others who want a candidate more experienced in public affairs and older in years.

These points have generated considerable momentum for the campaign of Senator Lyndon Johnson of Texas, the majority leader of the Senate. He will naturally get some of the delegate strength that is lining up now for Senator Kennedy if the latter, on the first or second ballot, does not come close to the majority needed.

The friends of Adlai Stevenson, on the other hand, think he would inherit many of Mr. Kennedy's delegates if the latter's boom begins to dissolve. But it looks now as if the Stevenson position isn't strong enough to capture the Kennedy delegates, many of whom are privately for Senator Johnson, especially those from some of the large cities.

The race is between the Senator from Massachusetts and the Senator from Texas. One or the other will be nominated on the Democratic ticket. No one else seems now to be in the running for the Democratic Presidential nomination.

Lodge has still another asset in GOP political reasoning. He once served in the Senate and would be an able presiding officer, which is the vice-president's principal duty. His Senate record was middle-of-the-road on domestic matters and internationalist in foreign affairs.

His adroit handling of the situation, as well as other UN crises during the last seven years, has placed him in the forefront of those who have demonstrated ability to handle the Russians.

Republicans have given up their hopes of having a "dream" ticket with New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller as a running mate for Vice President Richard M. Nixon. Political experts virtually concede the presidential nomination to Nixon.

It is pointed out that Lodge would provide geographical balance for Nixon and would contribute to winning some of the independent vote away from Senator John F. Kennedy, of Massachusetts, should he win the Democratic Presidential nomination.

Strong Slogans Won't Erase Our Weak Showing In Paris And Tokyo

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON — President Eisenhower is shortly reporting to the nation on his trip to the Far East. If it is like his report after the summit failure and after our setback from the Russian sputnik, this telecast is likely to be what Governor Rockefeller described as evasion of strong action by the use of "strong slogans" — the technique of "answering great questions of the future with worn answers from the past."

It is not pleasant to criticize the President of the United States. However, as Governor Rockefeller bluntly stated, the time for pussyfooting in sizing up our position as a nation is gone. And as the President reports to the nation, the fact is that the nation he addresses has suffered more diplomatic defeats, more political setbacks, greater loss of prestige than during any period in the last century.

In this hemisphere we find communism almost taking over a key island only 90 miles from our shores. We have experienced humiliating riots in the Panama Canal, the American flag spat upon, and ex-President Ricardo Arias defeated for president because he was a good friend of the United States.

In this hemisphere we have also seen a recent election in Ecuador where an outstanding statesman, ex-President Galo Plaza, educated at the University of Maryland, was defeated for president largely because he too was friendly to the U.S. Brazil, long considered our best friend, has begun a flirtation with Moscow, at the same time blocking a minera concession previously negotiated by ex-Secretary of the Treasury George Humphrey, Herbert Hoover Jr. and John Foster Dulles Jr.

Erosion In Asia-Africa

In Africa we have seen Russia building the Aswan Dam, a project considerably bigger than our biggest dam, Grand Coulee, and doing a very efficient job of it in an area which controls the gateway between Europe and Asia, where Anglo-Saxon prestige once was supreme.

In Asia we find revolts in South Korea and Turkey have cut the political ground out from under leaders on which we bet our money, our prestige, and our military might.

In Europe we find our allies lacking us publicly but warning us privately that we have got to mend our blundering ways. Only last week we found our ambassador for disarmament, Fredrick Eaton, former director of Monsanto Chemical, scurrying home from Geneva because of a French and British warning to revise our arms stand or lose their support.

Finally, and perhaps most important, we have lost the effectiveness of the chain of bases extending around Russia, from West Germany to Japan.

Chief purpose of these bases has long been observation. They are outmoded for conventional military retaliation. But they were extremely important for U-2 spy flights. Now these flights are banned.

The paralysis of these bases, plus the humiliation of being disinvited to Moscow and Tokyo is perhaps the greatest loss of all. And all the Madison Avenue statements by Jim Hagerty, all the carefully chosen words written for Ike by ghost writer Kevin McCann, can't brush this aside. Nor can the plaudits received in the Philippines and Formosa, two countries which like didn't want to visit, cover up the degradation of being snubbed by our key ally in the Far East—Japan.

The circle grew smaller and smaller.

In a half hour, the boys of Mount Hermon were headed for home — some north and east through Northfield, Massachusetts; some up through nearby Brattleboro; some south through Turners Falls; some west through Troy. They promised to keep in touch with one another. This is one of the sentimental fictions of graduation.

Frank Gibson Walter, 17, tall and broad, got into the family car and, with his father's consent, drove the first leg of the trip home to Rumson, New Jersey. His mother, a dark, pretty woman, sat up front with him. It was a proud day for the Walters. The father is an engineering technician at Fort Monmouth, N.J. and the mother is a competent secretary.

Like millions of other parents, they had sacrificed much to put their children through school. This day was the payoff. Frank graduated in the top third of his class.

His older brother, Perry, was on a summer cruise with his classmates of New York State Maritime College.

Both boys are accustomed to work. The older one used to spend his summers slinging cases of soda off a truck. Frank had worked in the kitchen at Mount Hermon washing out the soup kettles. All of the family understands work. Their forebears — the Walters from Sweden and the Vreelands from Holland — were all independent craftsmen and churchgoers.

Part of our tragic drop in prestige resulted from the U-2 spy plane and the blundering alibi which followed it. It was the wrong plane sent at the wrong time to the wrong place. And the presidential alibi was equally wrong.

However, national power and prestige doesn't coast downhill overnight. It erodes gradually, and a great many bungles went into the present accelerated slide which has gained such momentum since the U-2 incident.

Part of the blame, however, must go to Democratic leaders who wrapped the protective flag of bipartisanship around Eisenhower every time he came home from a defeat or let a crisis flare up to embarrass the nation.

The story of this erosion and how the Democrats helped it will follow in an early column.

Behind The Scenes

Republicans in Hawaii were irked when Ike refused to receive an honorary degree from the University of Hawaii unless the president of the university and the regents—all Republicans—came out to the Marine Corps base to present it. Ike had a great opportunity at the university to make a speech to the mixed races of the Pacific which make up the 50th state, citing them as an example of racial tolerance, but he refused to do more than pause between golf rounds to receive the honorary degree.

Congressman Adam Clayton Powell of Harlem is now using the Congressional Record in his war against white liquor dealers in Harlem. The other day he inserted in the Record under the caption "Rally The People of Harlem to Buy From Negro-Owned Liquor Stores" a list of all "Harlem Negro-owned package liquor stores."

A Homecoming For The King

A three-day state visit starting tomorrow in Washington will be a homecoming of sorts for Phumiphon Aduldet, the King of Thailand. The monarch, who ascended the throne in 1955, was born in Cambridge, Mass., 32 years ago while his father was a Harvard medical student.

His Western orientation appears complete. The King is a talented jazz clarinetist who holds jam sessions at his Heart of Flower Palace in exotic Bangkok. The state visit will highlight a month-long tour of the United States for the King, his beautiful Queen Kitiyakara and their four children.

Thailand for many years has been a fast friend of the United States, and now is the cornerstone of the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization (SEATO). Thailand (known as Siam until 1949) is one of the few countries of Asia with a rice surplus and no pressing population problems. Its 20 million people inhabit a forested land about three-fourths the size of Texas.

Domestic affairs have been relatively stable since Field Marshal Sarit Thanarat, the Supreme Commander of the Thai armed forces, seized power in a bloodless coup in October 1958, and established himself as Premier. Sarit would like more economic aid from the United States, and once urged that future military aid be in the form of welfare projects for the armed forces.

Communist terrorists infiltrating Thailand from Malaya to the south, and from Laos to the northeast, appear to have been checked. This is well, for many strategists believe Thailand to be the military pivot upon which any common defense must turn if Red encroachments in the region are to be prevented.

These Days

By George E. Sokolsky

No Mollycoddle

In 1904 and 1905, Theodore Roosevelt established the principle that as the United States, under the Monroe Doctrine, objected to any European power intervening in the affairs of Latin America, the United States had a moral responsibility to maintain order and protect life and property in these countries.

In his 1904 annual message, President Theodore Roosevelt said:

"... It is not true that the United States feels any land hunger or entertains any projects as regards the other nations of the Western Hemisphere save such as are for their welfare. All that this country desires is to see the neighboring countries stable, orderly, and prosperous."

Then he declared American policy as follows:

"... Chronic wrongdoing, or an impotence which results in a general loosening of the ties of civilized society, may in America, as elsewhere, ultimately require intervention by some civilized nation, and in the Western Hemisphere the adherence of the United States to the Monroe Doctrine may force the United States, however reluctantly, in flagrant cases of such wrongdoing or impotence, to the exercise of an international police power."

Theodore Roosevelt never begged the issue. He was first of all an American. It was in that spirit that in this same message, he laid down this guiding statement:

"... We would interfere with them only in the last resort, and then only if it became evident that their inability or unwillingness to do justice at home and abroad had violated the rights of the United States or had invited foreign aggression to the detriment of the entire body of American nations."

In his 1905 annual message, Theodore Roosevelt wrote for contemporary America:

"... There are, of course, limits to the wrongs which any self-respecting nation can endure. It is always possible that wrong actions toward this Nation, or toward citizens of this Nation, in some State unable to keep order among its own people, unable to secure justice from outsiders, and unwilling to do justice to those outsiders who treat it well, may result in our having to take action to protect our rights; but such action will not be taken with a view to territorial aggression, and it will be taken at all only with extreme reluctance and when it has become evident that every other resource has been exhausted."

Fidel Castro might read the Roosevelt 1904 and 1905 messages in detail. True, times have changed but they have not changed that much.

The people of the United States are growing very weary of his nonsense and his next step, a mutual security treaty with Soviet Russia, may have to be his last.

Up to now President Eisenhower has taken the position that the United States will not be the aggressor in any situation. This attitude, well known to all countries, is the foundation of policy for other countries. They approach the United States impudently, assuming that President Eisenhower will turn the other cheek. No country fears us, because inaction is anticipated. President Eisenhower, it is believed universally, will fill out his term without taking action against Castro, no matter what Castro does that is antagonistic to the United States, short of blowing up Miami Beach.

The policy cannot much longer prevail. It is an encouragement to the weak and backward nations as well as to the Soviet Universal State to flout the United States on small matters as well as large. The policy has become a peril to world peace. From a moral standpoint, it may be justified on the ground that we are not the first to act in a fighting war, but in this period of the 20th Century, war is fought by other means than military and therefore an adjustment in thinking on this subject is necessary. This is particularly true as regards Cuba.

The application of Jehovah Witness pacifism to American policy is impossible when its enemy is armed for war. Khrushchev would not have dared to maintain his posture in Paris were he not sure that nothing would be done about it. Nor would Fidel Castro. In a word, the non-aggression policy has stimulated impudence.

The next President, no matter who he may be, will not be able to continue along Eisenhower's lines. The President is personally very popular and it is difficult to criticize him without offending many good people. No present candidate for the Presidency enjoys such personal popularity — which is very good, indeed.

'Where's Nixon's Courage On Farm Probelsms?'

Kennedy, Johnson, And The 'Catholic Issue'

By David Lawrence

WASHINGTON — Paul Butler, chairman of the Democratic National Committee, may have unwittingly put his finger on what is the real key to the Democratic Presidential nomination. He discussed frankly the "Catholic issue" in talking to the National Press Club here on Wednesday, and indicates plainly the dilemma that the Democrats may find themselves in if they fail to choose Senator Kennedy of Massachusetts as their nominee. Here is a tape recording of the question asked and the answer given by Mr. Butler:

"Q. If Jack Kennedy is denied the nomination because of objections of some leaders to his religion, do you think many Catholics will vote Republican?"

"A. I think that I've spoken on this before, although only perhaps in an isolated press conference which did not get national attention, particularly here from the press corps in Washington."

"This puts me right on the spot. I am an American Catholic, or, perhaps more properly, I am a Catholic American. And I believe that, up to now, the religious issue in the preferential primaries, the religious issue in the discussion by the leading newspapers and magazines and radio and television commentators, has been made such an issue that a Catholic bloc vote, which does not exist ordinarily — and I think anybody who knows anything about American politics cannot contend otherwise."

"There is no such thing as a Catholic bloc vote normally, but the Catholics of the country, in a feeling of discrimination which may very well be expressed in the denial — not necessarily altogether the reason, but certainly maybe a very important reason why Jack Kennedy would be denied the nomination, if he is — and might very well result in just a normal reaction on the part of any American who felt that one of his own, in a particular religious faith, had been discriminated against on the grounds of religion."

"And I say to you, very objectively I hope, that I think that that situation may very well be developed, not because of any effort within the membership of the Catholic Church of the United States to create a Catholic bloc vote either pro or con. And I think that you would find much less of a Catholic bloc vote for Mr. Kennedy if he is nominated than you would find against the Democratic ticket if he is denied the nomination and comes into the convention with almost enough votes to win the nomination."

Now, it so happens that long before the primary contests in the various states in the last few months began, Senator Kennedy let it be known that he would not remain silent on the "Catholic issue." He told newsmen that, if after winning most of the primaries, he were turned down by the Democratic National Convention, he would conclude that his religion had been a deterrent factor.

This point of view, in deed, has been shared by many of Mr. Kennedy's followers. In fact, there have been some who have argued that the "Catholic issue" would be a benefit to a Catholic who happens to be nominated. During the 1956 Democratic convention when the Massachusetts Senator was being boomed for the Vice Presidential nomination, his supporters used statistics to show that the Catholic vote holds the balance of power in some of the states with big electoral votes and that a Catholic on the ticket would be an asset rather than a liability.

The significance of the argument is not lost on the politicians, especially those in the large cities. For, if Senator Kennedy fails to get the nomination, whether because of his religion or because of some other factor — such as his youth or inexperience — the leaders of the big Democratic organizations know they may have something of a debate on their hands with the rank and file of the precinct workers if they have not done everything they could to nominate the Massachusetts Senator for the top spot.

There are among the organization men those who hope that, if this is not possible but Mr. Kennedy is chosen for second place, some of the resentment will disappear.

The opposition to Senator Kennedy inside the Democratic Party is in large part based on reasons other than the "Catholic issue."

There are those who want a candidate more friendly to union labor. There are others who want a candidate more experienced in public affairs and older in years.

These points have generated considerable momentum for the campaign of Senator Lyndon Johnson of Texas, the majority leader of the Senate. He will naturally get some of the delegate strength that is lining up now for Senator Kennedy if the latter, on the first or second ballot, does not come close to the majority needed. The friends of Adlai Stevenson, on the other hand, think he would inherit many of Mr. Kennedy's delegates if the latter's boom begins to dissolve. But it looks now as if the Stevenson position isn't strong enough to capture the Kennedy delegates, many of whom are privately for Senator Johnson, especially those from some of the large cities.

The race is between the Senator from Massachusetts and the Senator from Texas. One or the other will be nominated on the Democratic ticket. No one else seems now to be in the running for the Democratic Presidential nomination.

Lodge has still another asset in GOP political reasoning. He once served in the Senate and would be an able presiding officer, which is the vice-president's principal duty. His Senate record was middle-of-the-road on domestic matters and internationalist in foreign affairs.

Severe Depression Needs Professional Help

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

Depressions come in many disguises. In some victims of this mental state, the most prized aspects of their personality is affected. The Casanova who take pride in his ability as a lover, for example, may complain of loss of desire. In others, a longstanding enthusiasm for music or other hobbies wanes.

Dr. Wendell S. Muncie of Baltimore wrote recently that depressions may become an occupational disability in the dedicated person. When depression occurs, clergymen lose their sense of communion with God, physicians feel they are of no help to their patients, and teachers cannot put across their material to their students.

A severe depression is as difficult to endure as the pains of cancer. It is a frustrating experience because the individual cannot do anything to overcome his feelings and reactions. This utter sense of defeatism robs some of their desire to work whereas others are uneasy, anxious, or agitated. They blame themselves and feel unworthy or guilty.

Unless the condition is recognized and treated, the breaking point is reached ultimately. The majority break with reality and become psychotic; some panic and commit suicide.

Our psychiatrists have much to offer. Many drugs offer relief and the illness can be shortened with electric shock therapy. Recurrences are prevented when the basic mechanism of the breakdown is understood more thoroughly.

The main stumbling block is the refusal of the family to recognize the seriousness of the disorder. Treatment is delayed by a vacation, change in occupation, and futile heart to heart talks in which the sufferer is told to "forget it" or "you have nothing to worry about." These men and women do not know why they are depressed and are incapable of logical thinking. They need professional help.

REPLY
Aspirin is nonaddictive and probably is not harmful for you so long as it does not cause unpleasant side reactions or encourage bleeding from the stomach. It is not a wholesome habit, however.

In fact it's the height of irony that President Garcia of the Philippines and his Ambassador, Carlos Romulos, made plea after plea that Ike visit their country, but were snubbed—until he needed some friendly cheers to counteract the humiliation of Paris and Tokyo. Only then was his itinerary revised. Now those Filipino cheers are proudly exhibited by Jim Hagerty as an offset to the jeers of Tokyo.

Part of our tragic drop in prestige resulted from the U-2 spy plane and the blundering alibi which followed it. It was the wrong plane sent at the wrong time to the wrong place. And the presidential alibi was equally wrong.

Mrs. Walter worried that they would not get home in time for the graduation party. She had sent invitations to relatives and friends to be at the Walter home at 8 p.m. The ride from Northfield to Rumson is 260 miles and, south of Hartford, it began to rain.

Ralph Walter took the wheel and toiled down Merritt Parkway at 65. Once, he looked in the mirror and saw an unmarked car bearing down on him at high speed. "Trooper," he said. It was. But the car flew by and the family began to breathe again.

At the house, Aunt Emy Peterson had the Swedish meatballs made, and the salads and hot baked beans and the cold cuts were all on the dining room table, covered with wax wrap. Mr. Walter said he would mix a drink for his wife, but she hung her hat and coat, shoved her hair up, and said she had no time for it.

By 8:15 p.m. the guests began to arrive. The men shook hands with young Frank and the women kissed him effusively. Everyone brought a present: money to buy a camera, tie clasp, cufflinks, jewelry box, sport shirts. He didn't have much to say. This wasn't his crowd. It was his parents' generation.

The dog, Snooky, went about nervously sniffing the Jardines, the Potoks, the Williams, the Paul Walters, the Bennet, Vromans and even grandma Jennie Walter, who is 86 and got the first piece of graduation cake. The oldsters had their Scotch on the rocks and the men kidded each other roughly.

At 11:30, the living room was empty. Frank helped his mother clean up the dishes. The big day was over. Now the young man was headed for the Hotel Administration School at Cornell University.

Soon the long climb toward graduation will begin again...

Tribe Knocks Yanks Out Of First Place

Cops Nightcap, 7-6, In 11th Frame After Losing To Ford, 6-2

CLEVELAND (AP)—Cleveland pushed across an unearned run in the 11th inning of the nightcap Sunday — on an error by Roger Maris — and defeated New York 7-6 after the Yankees won the opener of a doubleheader 6-2 on Whitey Ford's four-hitter.

The split knocked the Yanks out of first place as Baltimore beat Kansas City 9-2 and grabbed a one-game advantage, six percentage points in front of New York.

Despite his costly error, Maris did about all he could to keep the Yanks in the second game. He hammered two home runs, his 21st and 22nd, and got a run-producing single to drive in four runs and up his league-leading RBI total to 58. He also drove in a pair in the opener.

The Indians tallied the winning marker off Johnny James, fourth New York pitcher. Hank Foiles singled and, with two out, pinch-hitter Bob Hale doubled down the right field line and the ball rolled past Maris.

The victory before 57,261—the largest of the season in the American League—was a well-earned win for Jim Perry (8-3). He pitched 6 2/3 innings of relief after starter Jim Grant blew a 4-0 first-inning lead.

The two games were a sharp contrast. In the first, Ford (4-5) held the Indians in check except in the fourth inning when Vic Power singled and Tito Francona cracked a home run. That cut Ford's lead to 3-2, but New York added three more runs off Ted Bowsfield (3-3) in the sixth to wrap it up. Bobby Richardson's two-run double was the key blow of that uprising.

Gendebien And Frere Victors At LeMans

LE MANS, France (UPI)—Belgian veterans Oliver Gendebien and Paul Frere, alternating at the wheel of an Italian Ferrari, Sunday won the 28th running of the annual Le Mans 24-hour endurance auto race.

Gendebien and Frere covered 313 laps in the 24-hour period for a total distance of 4,217.530 kilometers (2,600.773 miles) at an average speed of 175.730 k.p.h. (109.19 m.p.h.).

It marked the first time an all-Belgian team had won the classic Gendebien, 37, teamed with American Phil Hill of Santa Monica, Calif., to win it in 1958, also in a Ferrari.

This time Gendebien, ably backed by 45-year-old sportsman-journalist Frere, grabbed the lead in the second hour of the grueling 24-hour test and held on to it the rest of the way.

At the outset, Americans Masten Gregory of Kansas City and Chuck Daigh of Long Beach, Calif., aboard a Maserati, grabbed the lead and held it well into the second hour.

But Gregory pushed the Italian car too fast and it packed up with engine trouble after only 11 laps.

Second were Ricardo Rodriguez of Mexico and Andre Pilette of France (Ferrari 2,992 cc), and third was Britain's Roy Salvadori and John Clark, driving an Aston Martin 2,992 cc.

Fernando Tavano and Pierre Loustel (France) on Ferrari 2,953 cc were fourth and George Arents Southampton, N. Y., and Alan Connell, Fort Worth, Tex., on Ferrari 2,953 cc were fifth.

A crowd estimated at 500,000 who got soaked at the start of the race Saturday night and scorched in Sunday's blazing sunshine, gave the winning Belgians a great ovation.

Cleveland Team Physician Orders Rest For Piersall

Jim Is Tossed Out Of Game By Umpire

CLEVELAND (UPI)—The Cleveland Indians' team physician Sunday night ordered an indefinite rest for outfielder Jim Piersall.

Piersall, who has been involved in a series of incidents during the past month, was ejected from the nightcap of Sunday's doubleheader with the Yankees following a sixth-inning argument with Umpire Hank Soar.

Dr. Don Kelly, physician for the Indians, ordered the rest for Piersall and said he will decide within the next two days how long the rest treatment will continue.

Piersall, batting 292 and enjoying one of his finest seasons in the majors, became involved with White Sox President Bill Veeck earlier this month when he threw a baseball against Comiskey Park's elaborate scoreboard.

Gentle Bats In Seven Runs As Birds Win

Socks Two Homers, Estrada Bags 8th, Defeats K.C., 9-2

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI)—The Baltimore Orioles stormed back into first place in the American League Sunday when Jim Gentle drove in seven runs with two homers and Chuck Estrada pitched a two-hitter in a 9-2 victory over the Kansas City Athletics.

Baltimore's victory, along with a split by the Yankees in the doubleheader with the Indians, enabled the Orioles to take over the league lead by six percentage points.

Estrada, who won his eighth game against three defeats, had a no-hitter until Bill Tuttle singled to open the eighth. Andy Carey then homered for Kansas City's final hit.

Gentle, the Orioles' leading hitter, hit a three-run homer in the sixth inning and followed with a grand-slam homer in the seventh. Gene Woodling also homered for the Orioles.

Estrada and Kansas City's Dick Hall hooked up in a scoreless reached first on an error. Woodling singled, and Gentle hammered his ninth homer of the season to give the Orioles a 3-0 lead.

With one out in the seventh, Marv Breeding doubled, Stephens singled, and Woodling walked to fill the bases. Then Gentle unloaded his second homer of the day.

Tuttle singled sharply to left to open the eighth and he scored when Carey homered over the left field fence.

Baltimore got its final two runs in the ninth on Stephen's single and Woodling's homer.

Hall took the loss, his third against five victories.

Springfield Wins, Dave Green Hurt

Hit In Face By Ball, Undergoes Operation

Springfield's Rockets kept their record unblemished in the Hampshire County Baseball League yesterday when they edged Kirby by the score of 4-3 but lost the service of Dave Green, 23-year-old infielder, who was seriously injured when struck in the face by a pitched ball in the fifth inning.

Green, who drove in two runs with a timely double in the third inning, was operated upon last evening in Romney Memorial Hospital after suffering what hospital attaches described as a multiple compound fracture of bones of the face and nose.

Green, a resident of Romney, is 23 years old.

Lefty Tom Frye twirled Springfield to its seventh consecutive victory of the campaign. He gave up seven hits, struck out 14 and notched his fifth straight triumph of the campaign.

The Rockets broke the 3-3 tie in the eighth inning on Jerry Hanna's fielder's choice, his steal of second and an overthrow that enabled him to score.

R. Hott blasted a two-run homer for Kirby in the first inning of the game played at Romney High School Field. Joe Ely, Kirby pitcher, yielded five hits and struck out eight.

In the only other Hampshire County League game reported yesterday, Junction trimmed Augusta at the latter place by the score of 10-2.

Dale Stickley turned back Augusta with five hits and pitched shutout ball after the fourth inning.

Eddie Hartman with a triple and double and Steve Wilson with a pair of two-baggers led the Junction attack. Peer collected three hits, including a home run, for Augusta. Scores:

Relief Hurlers Star In 4-2, 7-4 Triumphs

DETROIT (AP)—The Washington Senators swept a doubleheader from the Detroit Tigers Sunday, getting superb relief pitching from Don Lee and Ray Moore in 4-2 and 7-4 triumphs.

A trio of ex-Tigers made major contributions to the twin losses that made it seven defeats for the punchless Tigers in their last nine games.

Former Tiger Lee pitched four-hit ball over the last four innings of the opener to save Pedro Ramirez' victory. Moore bailed another former Detroit, Bill Fischer, out of a jam in the second game.

A former Tiger infielder, Reno Bertoia, had a pair of hits in each contest, including a two-run homer that iced the nightcap.

The Senators barged in front with four runs in the first inning of the second game. They hit starter Paul Foytack with four singles and a double, chasing the Tiger veteran for the ninth straight time.

Second baseman Billy Gardner suffered a wrenched right knee when Norm Cash slid into him in the sixth inning. He will be out three weeks.

Friend, Law Are Beaten, 7-6 And 7-5

Double Setback Chops Cubs' Lead To Three Games

PITTSBURGH (AP)—The Chicago Cubs rocked the Pittsburgh Pirates' one-two pitching combination of Bob Friend and Vernon Law Sunday and swept both ends of a doubleheader 7-6 and 7-5. The double loss chopped the Cubs' League-leading margin to three games.

The second place Milwaukee Braves dropped a 6-3 decision to the Los Angeles Dodgers but were still able to gain a half-game on the Pirates.

In the first game, the Cubs tagged Friend with his fourth loss of the season despite a sparkling four-run, ninth-inning rally by the Pirates. Highlighting the inning was a two-run home run by Smokey Burgess, the 11th four-bagger of his career as a pinchhitter.

The Pirates also saw a potential eighth inning rally snuffed out in the second game by fine relief pitching by Don Elston.

The Cubs got to Law for two runs in the third inning, three more in the fourth and two in the eighth. Two errors in the fourth cost the Pirates three runs.

Ernie Banks drove in what proved to be the winning run in the first game by smashing a double off the left field scoreboard in the ninth inning. The Cubs got their other six runs in a big fifth inning.

The home run by Burgess tied him with George Crowe of St. Louis for the most pinch homers during a career. Crowe hit his 11th on May 25th against Milwaukee.

CCC Golfers Eke Out 34-32 Decision Over Maplehurst

Locals Score 7th Straight Win In Series

Hold 11 To 9 Edge In Foursomes; 88 Players In Match

Golfers of the Cumberland Country Club squeezed out a 34-32 decision over the Maplehurst Country Club in a match staged yesterday over the Frostburg course and chalked up their fourth consecutive win of the current campaign.

It was the CCC team's seventh consecutive victory over the Mountain City team since the series got under way in 1957. It was also the closest match in this season. In 1958, Maplehurst lost on its home course by five points and narrowed the margin to four a year ago.

Eighty-eight players participated in the 22 foursomes. The

One For The Book!

Ronnie May, professional at the Maplehurst Country Club, believes that one of the foursomes played yesterday at Frostburg in the match between the men's golf teams of the Cumberland Country Club and Maplehurst belongs in "One For The Book" category.

Jack Carnell and Bob Lacy, of the host organization, and Dr. Frank T. Cawley and Frank McCagh of the CCC team battled to a 1½ to 1½ tie—but the unusual thing about the contest was that they played 18 consecutive holes of tie golf. That is, neither twosome won a hole during the test.

Veteran CCC linksmen can't recall anything like it over the Christie Road course and it was the first time that such a match was staged in Frostburg.

CCC team copped 11 of the four-omies to Maplehurst's nine. Two ended in ties. The CCC linksmen won four of the foursomes by 3-0 scores while the losers posted three 3-0 wins.

It was Cumberland's second two-point victory in four outings this season. The locals defeated North Fork of Johnstown, Pa., here on June 1 by the score of 19-17. Other wins were over Fountain Head Country Club of Hagerstown and the Preston Country Club of Kingwood, W. Va.

Cumberland's next match is at Kingwood, July 10.

Crawford Is First NCAA Golf Repeater

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (AP)—Dick Crawford, 21-year-old junior at University of Houston, reigns as the first two-time champion of the NCAA Golf Tournament after the greatest comeback in its history.

The National Collegiate Athletic Assn. has sponsored the event since 1939 and since then no winner ever repeated until the Jacksonville, Ark., star turned the trick Saturday in a magnificent rally.

He was 6-down to Steve Smith of Stanford after the morning 18 holes over the 7,035-yard par 36-35-71 Broadmoor course. Crawford stroked four birdies on the closing nine holes to carve a two up victory. NCAA officials said no one had ever trailed by as much as 6 holes and rallied to win until Crawford's remarkable performance.

SEEK MIDDLE-MAN'S PROFIT—Next title bout on taps pits Gene Fuller, the NBA middleweight champ, against Carmen Basilio in Salt Lake City June 29. Basilio, veteran of 75 bouts in which he has won 54 with seven draws, lost to Fuller via a 14-round TKO in San Francisco in August, 1959, for the vacant NBA title. Fuller has had 55 fights, won 51 and lost four.

Rohrbaugh Challenges Educators

Blackwater Falls Session Is Held

Rohrbaugh again urged CREDAVIS, W. Va. (UPI) — State School Supt. R. Virgil Rohrbaugh called on educational leaders Sunday to work harder to solve the mass education problem.

Rohrbaugh, in an address at a meeting of the Council of College Presidents at nearby Blackwater Falls State Park, noted that Americans are becoming more educated every year.

As a result, he said, educators must appraise and evaluate themselves because it is only through this self-improvement that they must become capable of improving others.

Rohrbaugh again urged creation of a division of higher education.

He said it would improve and strengthen inter-collegiate communication, relieve the State Board of Education from making separate decisions for each state college and encourage diversity among state colleges. He said it also would release the individual creative powers of college professors and openly encourage them to do research and contribute to the needs of the future.

Answers Your Problems

DEAR READERS: Recently a woman wrote about her mother-in-law who insists that she frequently receives radio messages through her bridgework. The situation became critical when the mother-in-law announced a dinner party that she was listening to an exchange of secret information between Russia and Red-China and wanted to notify the F.B.I. I suggested psychiatric help.

This is what MY mail has been like for the past three days. You can draw your own conclusions.—ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN: I am a research engineer who wishes to comment on the woman who says she is bringing in radio messages on her bridgework. It is entirely possible that she is receiving radio programs, but if she's getting Russia, she is the first person in electronic history to bring in an overseas signal in this way.—CHARLESTON, W. VA.

DEAR ANN: There is an established case of a carbonium ion worker who retained enough of the dust so that it acted as a detector in his mouth. He had a great deal of gold work, plus a sensitive jaw bone. This man did bring in Station WOR in New Jersey.—YONKERS, N. Y.

DEAR ANN: I'm a ham and hold a second class radio-telephone license. I've known people who have received radio signals through the fillings in their teeth—particularly when they have two different types of metals in the mouth. The teeth carry the vibrations to the brain by bone conduction, as in a crystal-tuned circuit.—LITTLE ROCK

DEAR ANN: My aunt wore metal frame glasses and used a copper-handled cane to help her get around. She once swore she was receiving radio waves from the planes overhead when she was waiting for me at an airport.—LEXINGTON, KY.

DEAR ANN: During the war we had lots of fun listening to radio messages by attaching a safety pin to a rusty razor blade and a little piece of copper wire.

We actually got Tok—GRAND RAPIDS, MICH.

DEAR ANN: My grandmother wears a hearing aid. She gets radio messages all the time—especially when she's eating with stainless steel silverware.—ABILENE, KANS.

DEAR ANN: My uncle once sat in the corner of the living room smiling and tapping his foot rhythmically. When I asked him what he was listening to he had his ear cocked slightly. He replied, "Lawrence Welk is coming through my teeth." We thought the old guy was balmy, but since I've read the one about the woman in Red China, I'm not so sure.—SANDUSKY, OHIO.

DEAR ANN: I work in a small plant. For several months I thought I was going out of my mind because I imagined I heard voices. I was afraid to tell anyone for fear they'd put me away.

One day the voices became so clear I decided to see the plant doctor. You can imagine my relief to learn that small particles of metal filings were getting between my teeth and I was receiving radio waves.—RICHMOND, VA.

DEAR ANN: The steam radiators in our apartment give us better dance music than the radio, especially when it's raining.—TRAVERSE CITY, MICH.

DEAR ANN: Very often when my hair is up in metal curlers a familiar tune goes through my mind. When I turn on the radio that same tune is being played. Could I be receiving through my curlers.—SAN JUAN, PUERTO RICO.

DEAR ANN: One question, please. Did that woman who said she was receiving secret radio messages between Red China and Russia understand Chinese or Russian? Surely the messages were NOT being transmitted in English.—STAMFORD, CONN.

Goren On Bridge

(Copyright 1960 By The Chicago Tribune)

Q. 1—Partner opens with one diamond and you hold:

♠ 7 4 2 ♥ 8 5 3 ♦ 7 ♣ K Q 7 6 4 3

What is your response?

A.—Since no suitable response is available, it follows that the proper procedure is to pass. With less than six high card points, a one no trump response is not accepted, and a response at the level of two cannot be considered with a hand this weak.

Q. 2—As South you hold:

♠ 7 5 3 ♥ K Q 5 ♦ 7 4 3 ♠ A J 9 2

The bidding has proceeded:

South West North East

Pass Pass 1♦ 1♥

What do you bid now?

A.—The suggested call is one no trump. When made as a free bid this denotes a fairly good hand, one ranging in high card value from 10 to 12 points. If partner does not choose to go on, this should be the best final contract.

Q. 3—As South you hold:

♠ A K 10 ♥ K J 8 4 ♦ K 2 ♠ 9 7 6 3

The bidding has proceeded:

North East South West

1♦ Pass 1♥ Pass

2NT Pass ?

What do you bid now?

A.—In consideration of the increased value of the king of diamonds there can be no doubt that this hand belongs in a slam. Consequently, you should bid without further ado, in no trump, which suits you completely. You have 20 or 20.5 points, so you have an assured minimum of 33 points.

Q. 4—Both sides vulnerable. As South you hold:

♠ A 5 ♥ K 10 9 4 ♦ K 10 2 ♠ A K 8 3

The bidding has proceeded:

East South

What do you bid?

A.—Double. This is intended primarily as a take-out bid, if partner has a balanced hand and chooses to leave it in that should suit your taste for a sound profit will be in view. The take-out double is much to be preferred to a bid of three no trump which, first, might be too risky and, second, might result in missing a better contract in hearts.

Q. 5—As South you hold:

♠ A 9 7 5 3 ♥ 6 ♦ A J 9 8 7 4 2 ♠ 3

The bidding has proceeded:

South West North East

1♦ Pass 2♣ Pass

2♦ Pass 2♥ Pass

What do you bid now?

A.—With this holding we depart from our usual practice and jump with only three trumps. The recommended call is three spades. In view of the splendid fit, a gesture of strength must be made. Partner will probably realize that you have only three spades for, if you had four, having previously passed, you would not risk a mere two diamond bid with a good hand, but would rather jump to three spades at once.

Q. 6—As South you hold:

♠ A 9 7 5 3 ♥ 6 ♦ A J 9 8 7 4 2 ♠ 3

The bidding has proceeded:

South West North East

1♦ Pass 2♣ Pass

2♦ Pass 2♥ Pass

What do you bid now?

A.—Partner has shown a powerful hand and you have more than you might have had for your two previous calls. In other words, you would have bid in the same manner without the king of clubs. That, in conjunction with your singleton heart, should suggest slam possibilities. The recommended bid, therefore, is four clubs.

Q. 7—As South you hold:

♠ Q 10 3 ♥ A K Q 8 2 ♦ K 3 ♠ 7 5 4

The bidding has proceeded:

West North East South

Pass 1♠ 1♥ Pass ?

What do you bid now?

A.—Partner has indicated that he was unwilling to play for a penalty, but he has done so by an enormous leap. A jump to two no trump by him would have been sufficient if all he wanted to do was to arrive at game. He very likely has a long club suit to run and, in combination with your 11 high card points, you should have enough to produce a slam. The recommended call is, therefore, six no trump.

Q. 8—As South you hold:

♠ A K Q 10 3 ♥ J 3 ♦ A Q 4 2 ♠ Q 10

The bidding has proceeded:

South West North East

1♠ Pass 1NT Pass

What do you bid now?

A.—You have almost enough to contract for game directly, but the stronger call is a jump to three spades, strongly urging partner to carry on. This he will decline to do only if he has kept the bidding alive with a bare six points and no distributional advantage.

Q. 9—As South you hold:

♠ A K 10 3 ♥ J 3 ♦ A Q 4 2 ♠ Q 10

The bidding has proceeded:

South West North East

1♠ Pass 1NT Pass

What do you bid now?

A.—You have almost enough to contract for game directly, but the stronger call is a jump to three spades, strongly urging partner to carry on. This he will decline to do only if he has kept the bidding alive with a bare six points and no distributional advantage.

Q. 10—As South you hold:

♠ A K 10 3 ♥ J 3 ♦ A Q 4 2 ♠ Q 10

The bidding has proceeded:

South West North East

1♠ Pass 1NT Pass

What do you bid now?

A.—You have almost enough to contract for game directly, but the stronger call is a jump to three spades, strongly urging partner to carry on. This he will decline to do only if he has kept the bidding alive with a bare six points and no distributional advantage.

Q. 11—As South you hold:

1♠ Pass 1NT Pass

A.—You have almost enough to contract for game directly, but the stronger call is a jump to three spades, strongly urging partner to carry on. This he will decline to do only if he has kept the bidding alive with a bare six points and no distributional advantage.

Q. 12—As South you hold:

The bidding has proceeded:

It is entirely possible that she is receiving radio programs, but if she's getting Russia, she is the first person in electronic history to bring in an overseas signal in this way.—CHARLESTON, W. VA.

DEAR ANN: There is an established case of a carbonium ion worker who retained enough of the dust so that it acted as a detector in his mouth. He had a great deal of gold work, plus a sensitive jaw bone. This man did bring in Station WOR in New Jersey.—YONKERS, N. Y.

DEAR ANN: I'm a ham and hold a second class radio-telephone license. I've known people who have received radio signals through the fillings in their teeth—particularly when they have two different types of metals in the mouth. The teeth carry the vibrations to the brain by bone conduction, as in a crystal-l u n e d circuit.—LITTLE ROCK

DEAR ANN: My aunt wore metal frame glasses and used a copper-handled cane to help her get around. She once swore she was receiving radio waves from the planes overhead when she was waiting for me at an airport.—LEXINGTON, KY.

DEAR ANN: During the war we had lots of fun listening to radio messages by attaching a safety pin to a rusty razor blade and a little piece of copper wire.

We actually got Tok—GRAND RAPIDS, MICH.
DEAR ANN: My grandmother wears a hearing aid. She gets radio messages all the time—especially when she's eating with stainless steel silverware.—ABILENE, KANS.
DEAR ANN: My uncle once sat in the corner of the living room smiling and tapping his foot rhythmically. When I asked him what he was listening to he had his ear cocked slightly. He replied, "Lawrence Welk is coming through my teeth." We thought the old guy was balmy, but since I've read the one about the woman in Red China, I'm not so sure.—SANDUSKY, OHIO.
DEAR ANN: I work in a small plant. For several months I thought I was going out of my mind because I imagined I heard voices. I was afraid to tell anyone for fear they'd put me away. One day the voices became so clear I decided to see the plant doctor. You can imagine my relief to learn that small particles of metal filings were getting between my teeth and I was receiving radio waves.—RICHMOND, VA.
DEAR ANN: The steam radiators in our apartment give us better dance music than the radio, especially when it's raining.—TRAVERSE CITY, MICH.
DEAR ANN: Very often when my hair is up in metal curlers a familiar tune goes through my mind. When I turn on the radio that same tune is being played. Could I be receiving through my curlers.—SAN JUAN, PUERTO RICO
DEAR ANN: One question, please. Did that woman who said she was receiving secret radio messages between Red China and Russia understand Chinese or Russian? Surely the messages were NOT being transmitted in English.—STAMFORD, CONN.

Goren On Bridge

(Copyright 1960 By The Chicago Tribune)

Q. 1—Partner opens with one diamond and you hold:
♠ 7 4 2 ♥ 5 3 3 ♦ 7 ♣ K Q 7 6 4 3
What is your response?

A—Since no suitable response is available, it follows that the proper procedure is to pass. With less than six high card points, a one no trump response is not accepted, and a response at the level of two cannot be considered with a hand this weak.

Q. 2—As South you hold:
♠ 7 5 3 ♥ K Q 5 ♦ 7 4 3 ♠ A J 9 2
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
Pass Pass 1 ♦ 1 ♥
What do you bid now?

A—The suggested call is one no trump. When made as a free bid this denotes a fairly good hand, one ranking in high card value from 10 to 12 points. If partner does not choose to go on, this should be the best final contract.

Q. 3—As South you hold:
♠ A K 10 ♥ K J 8 4 ♦ K 2 ♣ 9 7 6 3
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♦ Pass 1 ♥ Pass
2 NT Pass ?
What do you bid now?

A—In consideration of the increased value of the king of diamonds there can be no doubt that this hand belongs in a slam. Consequently, you should bid it without further ado. In no trump, which suits you completely. You have 15 points, partner's rebid promises 19 or 20, so that you have an assured minimum of 33 points.

Q. 4—Both sides vulnerable. As South you hold:
♠ A 5 ♥ K 10 9 4 ♦ K 10 2 ♣ A K 8 3
The bidding has proceeded:
East South
What do you bid?

A—Double. This is intended primarily as a take-out bid. If partner has a balanced hand and chooses to leave it in, that should suit your taste for a sound profit will be in view. The take-out double is much to be preferred to a bid of three no trump which, first, might be too risky and, second, might result in missing a better contract in hearts.

Q. 5—As South you hold:
♠ A 9 7 5 3 ♥ 6 ♦ A K 7 6 ♣ A K 10 2
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♦ Pass 2 ♠ Pass
2 ♦ Pass 3 NT Pass
What do you bid now?

A—With this holding we depart from our usual practice and jump with only three trumps. The recommended call is three spades. In view of the splendid fit, a gesture of strength must be made. Partner will probably realize that you have only three spades for, if you had four, having previously passed, you would not risk a mere two diamond bid with a good hand, but would rather jump to three spades at once.

Q. 6—As South you hold:
♠ A 9 7 5 3 ♥ 6 ♦ A K 7 6 ♣ A K 10 2
The bidding has proceeded:
South West North East
1 ♦ Pass 2 ♠ Pass
2 ♦ Pass 3 NT Pass
What do you bid now?

A—Partner has shown a powerful hand and you have more than you might have had for your two previous calls. In other words, you would have bid in the same manner without the king of clubs. That, in conjunction with your singleton heart, should suggest slam possibilities. The recommended bid, therefore, is four clubs.

Q. 7—As South you hold:
♠ A 9 7 5 3 ♥ 6 ♦ A K 7 6 ♣ A K 10 2
The bidding has proceeded:

Possibility Of Supersonic
Jetliner Aired By Experts

Art On Picture Wire
By ROBERT J. SERLING
WASHINGTON (UPI) — Should America build a supersonic jetliner capable of 2,000 miles an hour?

That question is being discussed by industry and government officials and is the subject of congressional hearings.

The following questions and answers describe the problems involved in designing and operating a transport that could go from New York to Paris in three hours:

Q. Is there really a need for such an aircraft?

A. From a purely competitive standpoint, yes. Britain is reported well along on supersonic transport design, France and West Germany are said to be considering a joint supersonic project and Russia is known to be striving for what would be the ultimate in commercial air travel. The U.S. cannot afford to let one or more foreign countries beat it to super-sonic jetliners. Whether there is any real public demand for airliners that fast is another matter.

If enough people indicate they'd pay money for 2,000-mile-an-hour flights, the plane will be built.

Q. How much has the U.S. done toward a "super-jet"?

A. At least three American manufacturers — Lockheed, Boeing and Convair — have done considerable advance planning, both on supersonic technical problems and economics. Lockheed has a supersonic jetliner design on paper and claims "we know how fast it will fly, and how many passengers it will carry." Boeing and Convair are at about the same stage, which means a prototype would be built and tested by 1965. But Douglas, another of the industry giants, is wary Douglas points out that U.S. airlines can't afford supersonic jets at present because they still have financial and operational problems to solve with subsonic jetliners. Douglas believes the predictions that super-jets are "only five years away" are unrealistic and gives 1970 as a more logical target date.

Q. Will they be expensive?

A. The most expensive commercial planes in history. The research and development costs of just a prototype have been estimated at a minimum of $75 million and a maximum of $1 billion.
President Charles Thomas of Trans World Airlines says the actual production model will carry a price tag of about $18 million—three times more than the Boeing 707 and Douglas DC-8. The super-jets also will be bigger and heavier—350,000 to 600,000 pounds, compared to the DC-8's 276,000.

Q. Who'll pay for the research?

A. That is a question which is being thrashed out in Congress.
Governments like Britain and Russia are subsidizing supersonic transport development, and virtually every aviation official in this country says we must do likewise.
But there are two possibilities to ease the financing problem: (1)
If Congress appropriates the necessary funds for pushing full development of the B70 super-sonic bomber, it would solve many problems to be faced by the passenger planes; (2) A suggestion by President Robert Six of Continental Airlines that the Federal Government subsidize the research and design work, and be repaid through royalties on the sale of production models.

Q. Would a supersonic jet be built like the current jets?

A. They not only won't be built like them but they may not even look like them. Some of Boeing's and Lockheed's suggested drawings resemble futuristic rocket ships more than airplanes. For one thing, they will be built out of stainless steel and not itanium rather

Local Barber Fatally Hurt In Fall Here

W. H. Gayhart, 65,
Dies In Hospital

A 65-year-old local barber died early yesterday morning in Memorial Hospital of head injuries he sustained in a fall Saturday evening on a street in South Cumberland.

Willoughby H. (Bob) Gayhart, of 328 Davidson Street, was admitted to the hospital about 6 p.m. Saturday and died about 12 hours later.

Mr. Gayhart fell on Laing Avenue and was taken to the hospital by Astor Ambulance.

The county deputy medical examiner's office ruled the injured man died of a fractured skull.

Born at Greenville, Va., Mr. Gayhart had resided in Cumberland the past 30 years. He was a son of the late Michael and Rosa Bell (Harrison) Gayhart.

For the past 15 years, Mr. Gayhart had owned and operated a barber shop at 419 Virginia Avenue. He was a member of the Presbyterian Church.

Surviving are his widow, Clara (Smith) Gayhart; three stepsons, Robert Seibert, Silver Spring, and William R. and Charles N. Seibert, both of this city; two sisters, Mrs. Howard Bossman, Staunton, Va., and Mrs. Frank Biggs, Fairmont, W. Va.; four brothers, Harry F., Hugh C. and Alex L. Gayhart, all of Staunton, and David M. Gayhart, Culpeper, Va., and four grandchildren.

The body is at the Kight Funeral Home where the family will receive friends from 2 to 4 p.m. and 7 to 9 p.m.

County Allotted 1,037 Acres For Its Wheat

Allegany County has a wheat acreage allotment of 1,037 acres for 1961, according to Bradie H. Dolly, chairman of the County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee.

This is Allegany County's share of the national wheat allotment of 55 million acres.

The county allotment will be apportioned to eight wheat-producing farms in the county by the ASC committee. Seven eligible farmers will be mailed official notices of their wheat allotments before the wheat marketing quota referendum to be held at the ASC office, 37 Washington Street, from 8 a.m. until 6 p.m. Thursday, July 21. One farmer owns two farms but is eligible to vote only once.

In the wheat marketing quota referendum at least two-thirds of the growers voting must approve quotas if they are to be in effect. If quotas are approved, all farmers in the commercial wheat states with more than 15 acres of wheat, who exceed their acreage allotments, will be subject to marketing quota penalties on their excess wheat. Wheat growers who comply with the "feed wheat" program are exempted from the quota program. Growers who comply with their allotments will be eligible for price support at the full level available.

If marketing quotas are not approved for the 1961 wheat crop, penalties will not be in effect, but acreage allotments will remain in effect as a condition of eligibility for price support. Growers who comply with their wheat allotments will be eligible for price support at 50 per cent of parity.

Life Guard Is Cited By Safety Unit

ABL Staffer Speaks At Dinner Meeting

A resolution commending the quick thinking and prompt action of Ray Mewshaw in saving the life of a four-year-old boy from drowning in an area swimming pool has been adopted by the Western Maryland Safety Engineering Society.

The citation pointed out that on June 21 young Mewshaw leaped into the water, pulled the unconscious child to the shore and applied artificial respiration until the lad revived.

A copy of the resolution will be sent to the local youth, who was on duty as a life guard at the pool when the accident occurred.

Guest speaker at the society's dinner meeting at the Cumberland Country Club was George Chidester, quality control engineer at Allegany Ballistics Laboratory.

In an address on personnel safety in radiographic inspection, he described the molecular structure of solids and the creation of radio isotopes.

He also described methods of inspection and the application of radiation inspection and processes in various industries as well as safety measures, such as shielding, interlocking of controls, visual and audible alarm systems for detection of radiation, film badges and dosimeters for the protection of workers in inspection areas.

The society meetings were recessed for July and August and will resume in September, when Wade Thomas, assistant West Virginia fire marshal, will be the speaker.

Johnson Heights Talent Show Wednesday

The annual talent show of Johnson Heights Playground will be held Wednesday at 7 p.m. in the school auditorium.

The contest is one of the varied events planned on the play center this week, according to Mrs. Maxine Zehrbach, playground director.

A craft class on origami, Japanese paper folding, will be held at the playground today from 2 to 4 p.m. and a doll show will be held at 7 p.m. A meeting will follow at 8:30 p.m. to organize the playground newspaper.

Those who wish to take part in a picnic and swimming outing at Constitution Park are to meet at 12:30 p.m. with their lunch and swim money.

Wednesday night's talent show will be followed by a dance on the blacktop until 10 p.m. Parents are invited to both events.

Thursday's activities will feature a craft class on paper mache from 2 to 4 p.m.

John Heights Playground had a registration of 98 last week.

Woman Is Held For Hearing Today

A woman booked as Esther Bonney Shanholtz, 17 Offutt Street, was arrested yesterday by City Officers Carl Stouffer and John Daum.

She was arrested on a warrant charging that she carried away personal possessions of a North Centre Street woman valued at $95.

She was taken to the County Jail for a hearing slated today at 2 p.m. in Trial Magistrate's Court.

JAMES P. MILLER

County Sailor Helped Guard Ike In Pacific

James P. Miller, Navy aviation machinist mate third class has written his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Norman H. Miller, Mt. Savage Road, RFD 1, city, of some recent interesting experiences.

During the visit of President Eisenhower to the Pacific area, Miller was among those assigned to the security force to assure the President's safety.

Miller, who flies with a crew in a helicopter from aboard the support aircraft carrier USS Yorktown, was part of the permanent air patrol during the President's tour.

His ship was among those of the Seventh Fleet in the Western Pacific which met the President at the Philippine Islands and accompanied him to Formosa, Korea and Okinawa. During this tour, Miller said, at least seven helicopters were in the air all the time.

Miller is assigned to Helicopter Anti-Submarine Squadron Four and is a machinist on his craft, flying with a pilot and co-pilot.

A couple of weeks ago, his crew and other units of his squadron figured in the rescue of 43 British seamen from the grounded freighter Slum Lee. The steamer had run aground in an area where it could not be reached except from the air, and high seas were pounding it to pieces. The helicopters removed the 53 men from the ship to safety.

Miller is completing a four-year enlistment in the Navy and has less than a year more to serve. He plans to return here to seek employment.

State Planner Will Attend County Session

Richard A. Gucker, planning engineer for the State Planning Department, is planning to attend the next regular meeting of the Allegany County Planning Commission at 7:30 p.m. Thursday at the Court House.

Mr. Gucker met the members of the county commission at a dinner meeting June 16 at the Cumberland Country Club.

The state official intends coming here to offer his advice to the county on the selection of a planning consultant. This decision may be made Thursday night.

Beginning Friday, when the new fiscal year starts, the County Planning Commission will have a $25,000 budget with which to operate. That amount was provided in the next fiscal year when the county commissioners approved the annual levy list on April 19.

Alcoholics Anonymous Week Is Proclaimed

The week beginning today has been proclaimed Alcoholics Anonymous Week in tribute to the work done by the AA.

A proclamation designating the special week was approved last Friday by the Allegany County Board of Commissioners.

All fireworks within the state are forbidden by Maryland law unless approval has been obtained from the state insurance commissioner, according to Fire Chief Virgil Parker.

He said F. Douglass Sears, insurance commissioner, points out that under the law, fireworks of every description are banned unless approval has been obtained.

The law Mr. Sears said, specifically bans the use of firecrackers, squibs, rockets, sparklers, roman candles, torpedoes, bombs, paper caps, grenades, fire balloons, signal lights and any combustible or explosive composition.

No section of the state is exempt from operation of this law, and any person violating it by possessing, discharging or selling fireworks is guilty of a misdemeanor, and is subject to a fine of not more than $50.

Any person selling fireworks in violation of the provisions of the law shall be subject to a fine of not more than $200 for each offense.

Permits for special displays of fireworks are issued by the State Insurance Commissioner after investigations have been made to ascertain that the applicants have complied with all sections of the Maryland Statutes.

In accordance with these statutes, a certificate of insurance must be filed, made payable to the Insurance Commissioner of Maryland, in an amount prescribed by him and to be held as collateral in the event of injury to any persons, or damage to any property resulting from said display.

By reason of the enforcement of the Fireworks Act, loss of life has been greatly decreased and there have been few accidents as a result of burns and explosions incident to the use of fireworks.

City Firemen Begin Summer Training Plan

Classes Are Held By All Companies

The summer training of the Cumberland Fire Department is in full swing, according to Fire Chief Virgil Parker.

Aim of the plan is to standardize fire fighting procedures in all companies and to boost the efficiency of the department in basic fire fighting methods and evolutions.

Chief Parker said all four companies are training, as companies, under the supervision of Assistant Fire Chief Robert C. Long, department training officer.

Under the current plan, each company will train for an hour a day, in six-day cycles.

West Side Fire Company is training from 8:30 to 9:30 a.m., Central from 10 to 11 a.m., South Cumberland from 11:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. and East Side Fire Company from 1 to 2 p.m.

Are In Service

The training program will not interfere with the city's fire fighting efficiency, Chief Parker said, as training will be done within a block of the station and one man on the crew will be responsible for listening to the radio so calls can be answered promptly.

The department is holding the training work near the home stations while it is exploring plans to establish an adequate training center.

Central Fire Department crews train near West Side Fire Station, since there is no room on downtown streets for training purposes.

Officials said the program may muddy the water in some homes occasionally when hydrants are opened for testing and during hose evolutions.

The company training program began in mid-June and will continue throughout the summer.

Check Equipment

A typical drill with call for a company to make hydrant hook-ups. All such drills will be timed.

Assistant Chief Long said the practice is already paying off. He cited the case in which it took a company two minutes and 10 seconds to make a reverse lay (from a fire to a hydrant). The job was done in 40 seconds the next time, he said.

The training officer said the classes also provide opportunity to check on the equipment used by each company.

Officials said that the standardized procedure will make it possible to transfer men from one department to another without a loss of efficiency.

Special Permits Needed For Fireworks Displays

All fireworks within the state are forbidden by Maryland law unless approval has been obtained from the state insurance commissioner, according to Fire Chief Virgil Parker.

He said F. Douglass Sears, insurance commissioner, points out that under the law, fireworks of every description are banned unless approval has been obtained.

The law Mr. Sears said, specifically bans the use of firecrackers, squibs, rockets, sparklers, roman candles, torpedoes, bombs, paper caps, grenades, fire balloons, signal lights and any combustible or explosive composition.

Hiking M.D. On Way To Cumberland

Stays Overnight At Uniontown

UNIONTOWN, Pa. (UPI)—Dr. Barbara Moore, her spirits buoyed by a reception committee of spectators that lined U. S. Route 40 for 19 miles, rode into town in a state police car Sunday night and predicted confidently she would reach New York City by Wednesday.

"I will walk day and night," said the 56-year-old vegetarian, "because my diet allows me to withstand much exertion."

She said she would stay here overnight then return by car to Scenery Hill, where she was picked up by state police, to continue her cross-country trek.

Trooper Robert Palladino, with whom Dr. Moore made the drive, said some 2,000 persons greeted her upon her arrival. Palladino said Dr. Moore indicated the welcome was the most enthusiastic she has received in the United States.

Palladino, who will escort Dr. Moore to Scenery Hill in the morning, said spectators shouted greetings to them the entire way.

The Uniontown Chamber of Commerce feted Dr. Moore at the White Swan Hotel as a crowd estimated at more than 1,500 milled around. Cars were parked three-deep, snarling traffic.

Dr. Moore, a diminutive 5-2 and 120 pounds, called the Pennsylvania landscape "quite beautiful. This is one of the most scenic states I have seen," she said.

The doctor, whose itinerary changes almost as constantly as the breeze, has again revised her travelogue. She said she would veer off Route 40 to Cumberland, Md., thence to Washington, D.C., where she will pick up Route 1 to Philadelphia and New York.

County Youths At Conference

Allegany County is represented by eight high school students at the annual Presbyterian Senior High Youth Conference of the First Baltimore Synod.

The conference is being held at Washington College, Chestertown, for churches of Maryland, Washington, D.C., and Delaware.

Attending from Allegany County are Lynda Belt, LaVale; Charles Butt, 505 Washington Street; Linda Carter, RFD 5, city; Kay Lynne Dowell, 835 Braddock Road; Ross Gibson, LaVale; Linda Mae Hanifin, Knob Road; Cheryl Pence, 813 Edgewood Drive, and Jacqueline Smith, Frostburg.

The Presbyterian teen-agers are meeting to attend study conferences and daily discussions on beliefs, problems and the world mission of the church.

Conservation Plan Adopted At Maplehurst

The Maplehurst Country Club at Frostburg has adopted a basic conservation plan for its 113 acres, according to Martin M. Gordon, county unit conservationist for the U.S. Soil Conservation Service.

Mr. Gordon reported at the monthly meeting of the Allegany County Soil Conservation District Board of Supervisors that Maplehurst is one of three new basic conservation plans approved during June. The other farmers involved were Walter Geiger, who owns 646 acres on Johnson Road and A. M. Sively, who owns 23 acres near McCoole.

One new cooperarator added during the month was Homer Lease, owner of a 188-acre farm on Brant Road near Cresaptown.

Mr. Gordon also disclosed that he had taken the 4-H boys from Eckhart on a field trip to Mt. Savage. He also conducted programs for the Beall Elementary School fifth grade and for the Union Grove boys 4-H Club.

A report also was submitted showing that Kenneth M. Stone, soil scientist, had surveyed 1,846 acres of Garrett County and 260 acres of Allegany County.

The soil supervisors are continuing plans to attend the summer meeting of the State Association of Soil Conservation Districts at Ocean City on July 25-27.

Wilbert Pauk of Mt. Savage is board chairman.

Equity Suit Filed

Harold F. Anderson has filed an equity suit in Allegany County Circuit Court against Anne Lee Anderson.

Trooper Is Shot While Removing His Gun Belt

TFC. Deshong Is Slightly Injured

A Maryland state trooper was shot accidentally yesterday afternoon at Deep Creek Lake in Garrett County as he was removing his gun belt to begin a two-day leave.

He is Trooper First Class R. C. Deshong, stationed at the LaVale barracks, who was in good condition last night in Garrett County Memorial Hospital in Oakland.

The accident occurred as the .38 special service revolver started to fall from the holster as TFC. Deshong began to remove his gun belt.

Lt. W. E. O'Hara, LaVale barracks commander, who investigated, said the gun discharged as Trooper Deshong grabbed it.

The bullet went through the bottom of the holster, entered the right leg below the knee and came out above the ankle. No bones were broken.

Lt. O'Hara said the trooper was admitted to the hospital for treatment and shots to guard against gangrene and infection. He is expected to leave the hospital today and to resume duty Wednesday.

The accident happened at 4:30 p.m. in the Turkey Neck section of Deep Creek Lake and as the trooper was getting out of his car to enter his trailer there.

He was taken to the hospital by Marshall Wilson of Waverly Street, Westernport, who occupied a nearby trailer.

Former Local Teacher Takes Towson Post

Samuel J. Lisanti, former local teacher, has accepted a position as supervising teacher at the Lida Lee Tall Campus Demonstration School of Towson State Teachers College.

Mr. Lisanti has been sixth grade teacher and administrative assistant at the Park School of Baltimore for two years. At Towson he will teach fifth grade, supervise student teachers and conduct research projects on current educational problems.

He received his bachelor of science degree in 1953 from Frostburg State Teachers College, where he won the leadership award, earned letters in soccer and tennis, and was sports editor of State-to-Date, the student newspaper.

Mr. Lisanti took his master's degree at Teachers College Columbia University, in 1956. At Columbia he was named to Phi Delta Kappa and Kappa Delta Pi educational fraternities.

He has earned partial doctoral credit at McCoyle College of Johns Hopkins University, and will return to Columbia this summer to continue work on the doctorate in education.

He taught at Gephart and Columbia Street schools here before joining the faculty of the Park School, where his pupils last year won the Danbury Trophy for having the outstanding elementary school newspaper in the state, and another trophy this year for the best student writing team at the Maryland Scholastic Press Association conference.

County To Get $140,000 Fund For Highways

Allegany County is in line for $140,000 of the $1,684,000 issue of the State Roads Commission of Maryland County Highway Construction Bonds, Seventh Series, to be dated August 1.

The Allegany County Board of Commissioners has received a letter from C. R. Pease, secretary of the State Roads Commission, informing this county that the SRC has included Allegany County for $140,000 on the bond issue money.

Bids on the $1,684,000 bond issue will be received until 11 a.m. July 27. Mr. Pease wrote that the county should be able to get its $140,000 share after August 9.

The SRC also submitted to the county a report on the status of secondary federal aid funds available for this county. It shows a 1959 allocation of $99,594 for which agreement is necessary by June 30 and this money is earmarked for the Mexico Farms Road. U. S. Senator J. Glenn Beall stepped in last week with the National Park Service to assure that agreement was reached before the June 30 deadline.

Allegany County also is entitled to another $101,925 1960 allocation for which agreement is necessary by August 31. Of that total $21,405 is earmarked for plans, specifications and estimates on the Mexico Farms Road job and the other $80,519 is unprogrammed.

Reservist Graduates

Melvin L. Zembower, machinist's mate fireman, USNR, son of Mr. and Mrs. William R. Zembower, 33 Arch Street, graduated June 17 from a special course in ship activation procedures at the Norfolk Group, Atlantic Reserve Fleet, Norfolk, Va.

Inland Frogman

Skin diving usually is associated with coastal waters, but William R. "Bud" McDowell of Piedmont and a group of other young men have been practicing the sport regularly in Deep Creek Lake and other Garrett County waters. This picture was taken at a waterfall at Greenland Gap in Hardy County, W. Va.

Scuba Divers Find Sport Exciting At Deep Creek

By CHARLES H. KELLY
News Staff Writer

Scuba diving is a popular pastime in the warm coastal waters of California and Florida but one can hardly imagine the aquatic sport being enjoyed in chill waters of Deep Creek Lake or deep channels of the Potomac River.

However, William R. "Bud" McDowell of Piedmont and a group of friends of the Keyser and Georges Creek area find it so. That is, with proper diving gear.

The 29-year-old former Navy signalman is well-read on the subject and has acquired top quality equipment since becoming interested in exploring underwater back in 1953.

Life Guard Is Cited By Safety Unit

ABL Staffer Speaks
At Dinner Meeting

A resolution commending the quick thinking and prompt action of Ray Mewshaw in saving the life of a four-year-old boy from drowning in an area swimming pool has been adopted by the Western Maryland Safety Engineering Society.

The citation pointed out that on June 21 young Mewshaw leaped into the water, pulled the unconscious child to the shore and applied artificial respiration until the lad revived.

A copy of the resolution will be sent to the local youth, who was on duty as a life guard at the pool when the accident occurred.

Guest speaker at the society's dinner meeting at the Cumberland Country Club was George Chidester, quality control engineer at Allegany Ballistics Laboratory.

In an address on personnel safety in radiographic inspection, he described the molecular structure of solids and the creation of radio isotopes.

He also described methods of inspection and the application of radiation inspection and processes in various industries as well as safety measures, such as shielding, interlocking of controls, visual and audible alarm systems for detection of radiation, film badges and dosimeters for the protection of workers in inspection areas.

The society meetings were recessed for July and August and will resume in September, when Wade Thomas, assistant West Virginia fire marshal, will be the speaker.

JAMES P. MILLER

County Sailor Helped Guard Ike In Pacific

James P. Miller, Navy aviation machinist mate third class has written his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Norman H. Miller, Mt. Savage Road, RFD 1, city, of some recent interesting experiences.

During the visit of President Eisenhower to the Pacific area, Miller was among those assigned to the security force to assure the President's safety.

Miller, who flies with a crew in a helicopter from aboard the support aircraft carrier USS Yorktown, was part of the permanent air patrol during the President's tour.

His ship was among those of the Seventh Fleet in the Western Pacific which met the President at the Philippine Islands and accompanied him to Formosa, Korea and Okinawa. During this tour, Miller said, at least seven helicopters were in the air all the time.

Miller is assigned to Helicopter Anti-Submarine Squadron Four and is a machinist on his craft, flying with a pilot and co-pilot.

A couple of weeks ago, his crew and other units of his squadron figured in the rescue of 33 British seamen from the grounded freighter Slum Lee. The steamer had run aground in an area where it could not be reached except from the air, and high seas were pounding it to pieces. The helicopters removed the 33 men from the ship to safety.

Miller is completing a four-year enlistment in the Navy and has less than a year more to serve. He plans to return here to seek employment.

City Firemen Begin Summer Training Plan

Classes Are Held
By All Companies

The summer training of the Cumberland Fire Department is in full swing, according to Fire Chief Virgil Parker.

Aim of the plan is to standardize fire fighting procedures in all companies and to boost the efficiency of the department in basic fire fighting methods and evolutions.

Chief Parker said all four companies are training, as companies, under the supervision of Assistant Fire Chief Robert C. Long, department training officer.

Under the current plan, each company will train for an hour a day, in six-day cycles.

West Side Fire Company is training from 8:30 to 9:30 a.m., Central from 10 to 11 a.m., South Cumberland from 11:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. and East Side Fire Company from 1 to 2 p.m.

Are In Service

The training program will not interfere with the city's fire fighting efficiency, Chief Parker said, as training will be done within a block of the station and one man on the crew will be responsible for listening to the radio so calls can be answered promptly.

The department is holding the training work near the home stations while it is exploring plans to establish an adequate training center.

Central Fire Department crews train near West Side Fire Station, since there is no room on downtown streets for training purposes.

Officials said the program may muddy the water in some homes occasionally when hydrants are opened for testing and during hose evolutions.

The company training program began in mid-June and will continue throughout the summer.

Check Equipment

A typical drill with call for a company to make hydrant hook-ups. All such drills will be timed.

Assistant Chief Long said the practice is already paying off. He cited the case in which it took a company two minutes and 10 seconds to make a reverse lay (from a fire to a hydrant). The job was done in 40 seconds the next time, he said.

The training officer said the classes also provide opportunity to check on the equipment used by each company.

Officials said that the standardized procedure will make it possible to transfer men from one department to another without a loss of efficiency.

Special Permits Needed For Fireworks Displays

All fireworks within the state are forbidden by Maryland law unless approval has been obtained from the state insurance commissioner, according to Fire Chief Virgil Parker.

He said F. Douglass Sears, insurance commissioner, points out that under the law, fireworks of every description are banned unless approval has been obtained.

The law Mr. Sears said, specifically bans the use of firecrackers, squibs, rockets, sparklers, roman candles, torpedoes, bombs, paper caps, grenades, fire balloons, signal lights and any combustible or explosive composition.

No section of the state is exempt from operation of this law, and any person violating it by possessing, discharging or selling fireworks is guilty of a misdemeanor, and is subject to a fine of not more than $50.

Any person selling fireworks in violation of the provisions of the law shall be subject to a fine of not more than $200 for each offense.

Hiking M.D. On Way To Cumberland

Stays Overnight
At Uniontown

UNIONTOWN, Pa. (UPI)—Dr. Barbara Moore, her spirits buoyed by a reception committee of spectators that lined U. S. Route 40 for 19 miles, rode into town in a state police car Sunday night and predicted confidently she would reach New York City by Wednesday.

"I will walk day and night," said the 56-year-old vegetarian, "because my diet allows me to withstand much exertion."

She said she would stay here overnight then return by car to Scenery Hill, where she was picked up by state police, to continue her cross-country trek. Trooper Robert Palladino, with whom Dr. Moore made the drive, said some 2,000 persons greeted her upon her arrival. Palladino said Dr. Moore indicated the welcome was the most enthusiastic she has received in the United States.

Palladino, who will escort Dr. Moore to Scenery Hill in the morning, said spectators shouted greetings to them the entire way.

The Uniontown Chamber of Commerce feted Dr. Moore at the White Swan Hotel as a crowd estimated at more than 1,500 milled around. Cars were parked three-deep, snarling traffic.

Dr. Moore, a diminutive 5-2 and 120 pounds, called the Pennsylvania landscape "quite beautiful. This is one of the most scenic states I have seen," she said.

The doctor, whose itinerary changes almost as constantly as the breeze, has again revised her travelogue. She said she would veer off Route 40 to Cumberland, Md., thence to Washington, D.C., where she will pick up Route 1 to Philadelphia and New York.

Trooper Is Shot While Removing His Gun Belt

TFC. Deshong Is Slightly Injured

A Maryland state trooper was shot accidentally yesterday afternoon at Deep Creek Lake in Garrett County as he was removing his gun belt to begin a two-day leave.

He is Trooper First Class R. C. Deshong, stationed at the LaVale barracks, who was in good condition last night in Garrett County Memorial Hospital in Oakland.

The accident occurred as the .38 special service revolver started to fall from the holster as TFC. Deshong began to remove his gun belt.

Lt. W. E. O'Hara, LaVale barracks commander, who investigated, said the gun discharged as Trooper Deshong grabbed it.

The bullet went through the bottom of the holster, entered the right leg below the knee and came out above the ankle. No bones were broken.

Lt. O'Hara said the trooper was admitted to the hospital for treatment and shots to guard against gangrene and infection. He is expected to leave the hospital today and to resume duty Wednesday.

The accident happened at 4:30 p.m. in the Turkey Neck section of Deep Creek Lake and as the trooper was getting out of his car to enter his trailer there.

He was taken to the hospital by Marshall Wilson of Waverly Street, Westernport, who occupied a nearby trailer.

Mr. Gordon reported at the monthly meeting of the Allegany County Soil Conservation District Board of Supervisors that Mapelhurst is one of three new basic conservation plans approved during June. The other farmers involved were Walter Geiger, who owns 646 acres on Johnson Road and A. M. Sively, who owns 23 acres near McCoole.

Inland Frogman

Skin diving usually is associated with coastal waters, but William R. "Bud" McDowell of Piedmont and a group of other young men have been practicing the sport regularly in Deep Creek Lake and other Garrett County waters. This picture was taken at a waterfall at Greenland Gap in Hardy County, W. Va.

Scuba Divers Find Sport Exciting At Deep Creek

By CHARLES H. KELLY
News Staff Writer

Scuba diving is a popular pastime in the warm coastal waters of California and Florida but one can hardly imagine the aquatic sport being enjoyed in chill waters of Deep Creek Lake or deep channels of the Potomac River.

However, William R. "Bud" McDowell of Piedmont and a group of friends of the Keyser and Georges Creek area find it so. That is, with proper diving gear.

The 29-year-old former Navy signalman is well-read on the subject and has acquired top quality equipment since becoming interested in exploring underwater back in 1953.

"Scuba" stands for self-contained underwater breathing apparatus.

Bud said he and his friends go in for the sport primarily for pleasure and entertainment, and also find it profitable in salvage work, especially at the lake in Garrett County.

Salvage Operations

During the past couple of years he descended 60 feet below the lake surface and recovered a 16-foot boat which had capsized near the Stone Tavern bridge.

He also assisted in recovering the fiberglass top of another large boat which capsized after a serious accident on the lake. This time Bud descended about 45 feet in company with "Pete" Ladygo of the Keyser area, former football player at Potomac State, University of Maryland and Pittsburgh Steelers.

"Pete" an avid scuba diving enthusiast, recovered a 16-foot boat from the lake near McHenry. Bud pointed out that other miscellaneous pieces of equipment they have recovered include fishing gear and lanterns which sank into the lake.

The Piedmont diver said he and his friends usually fish for carp during winter months when the water is clearer.

Uses Spear Gun

Years ago McDowell caught fish with a makeshift frog gig on the end of a pole. Today he has a standard-make spear gun which is accurate up to about 18 feet. The rustproof weapon has an aluminum barrel and handle, a three-foot shaft, and about 12 feet of sturdy line.

After completing his four-year hitch in the Navy aboard the aircraft carrier Roosevelt he got his Korean bonus and with the money he bought essential equipment including fins for his feet and a face plate described by him as "the window to the underwater world."

In time he acquired a snorkel (rubberized tube about 15 inches in length used to breathe as the diver swims just below the surface); compensation mask ("must" when one clears his ears or sinus passage at certain water levels); a dry rubberized suit; 40,000 candlepower six-volt lantern; depth gauge and compass worn on the wrist; and a rust-proof knife used in case a diver gets snagged beneath the surface.

Some time ago McDowell purchased an Army surplus rubber boat for use as a base on the lake and a resting spot for the divers. He made a red flag with diagonal white stripe which is attached to an inner tube and floated on the surface as a warning to boaters that divers are underwater in a certain area.
